Tired Eyes After Plane Search

Back from fruitless search for missing Vancouver plane, Victoria Flying Club president Frank Copley steps wearily out of his Stinson Voyager at Patricia Bay. Flying club pilots searched Gulf Islands all day Sunday for cream-colored Piper Clipper and its three youthful Vancouver occupants.

U.S. Marines Near Key Reservoir

U.N. Within Four Miles Of Goal; Red Spearhead Hits S. Koreans

SEOUL (AP)—A strong column of United States Marines today advanced five and a half miles unopposed through icy hills toward prized Changjin Reservoir.

The cautious push carried the Marines to within four miles of their goal. Defence of the reservoir, facing the centre of the North Korean front, was believed a major reason for the belated entrance of Chinese Communists into the war.

To the south the U.S. 3rd Division, brought to full strength by South Korean and Puerto Rican elements, linked up with the South Korean 8th Division to form a solid United Nations defence line across the narrow waist of the Korean peninsula.

Fighting flared at both extremes of the battlefield.

ATTACK IN STORM

North Koreans guarding the approaches to the Soviet border attacked in force on the east coast Monday under cover of a blinding snowstorm. The Red spearhead battalion was led by tanks and self-propelled guns. It pushed across the Orancheon River, about 90 miles from the Russian border, threatening to outflank a South Korean regiment.

Near the west coast, U.S. 1st Cavalry Division units advanced one and a half miles. That carried them half way to the walled town of Yongbyon. Patrols reached the walls but did not enter the town.

Heavy Communist resistance stopped other 1st Cavalry troops near Won, eight miles south-east of Yongbyon.

And five miles south of Won, an estimated three regiments of Chinese Reds smashed a two-mile dent in lines of the South Korean 6th Division. Allied fighter-bombers halted this drive, killing about 1,000 Reds in a blazing attack two miles south of Kunu. The South Korean 7th Division moved up to bolster the 6th.

Elements of the U.S. 24th Division advanced up to two miles on the extreme western end of the front, about 18 miles west of Won.

Fleets of B-29s ranging back of the fronts hammered again at Sinuiju and set three main supply points aflame with fire bombs.

Leduc Blast Death Toll Stands At 10

LEDUC, Alta. (CP)—The fire-blackened ruins of the Pioneer Leduc Hotel—death trap of 10 persons in an explosion which destroyed the building Saturday—symbolize the blackest day in the history of this oil-boom town of 2,000 population.

Leduc, 21 miles south of Edmonton, was to have been serviced with natural gas Saturday. The gas wasn't turned out of the mains as scheduled, but when it is, shortly, the joy of the residents at receiving this cheap utility will be overshadowed by the horror memories of the worst hotel disaster in Alberta's history.

The two-story brick-and-frame hotel was ripped asunder by a blast heard 17 miles away shortly before noon Saturday, just as Leduc residents returned from Remembrance Day ceremonies. The hotel beverage room was to open in five minutes, and within 15 minutes it would have been filled. Had the explosion occurred then, residents fear the death toll might have been closer to 100.

The explosion was believed caused by gas seeping into the hotel basement from an undetermined source. Estimates of damage range from $100,000 to $300,000.

Sixteen persons were sent to hospital. Seven have since been released. Extensive damage was suffered by buildings close by, and five motor vehicles parked nearby were virtually demolished.

Will Lead Liberals Of Ontario

Walter C. Thomson is congratulated on taking over a new post by his twin 17-year-old daughters, Marie Louise, left, and Janet Annabelle. He was chosen Ontario Liberal leader at the party's annual convention in Toronto to succeed Farquhar Oliver, who resigned. Member of the House of Commons for Ontario (County), the lawyer-farmer from Pickering, near Oshawa, hopes to rebuild the party's strength in the provincial House. It holds only 13 of the 90 seats.—(CP Photo)

May Set Strike Deadline Today

A strike date for Victoria's more than 400 shipyard workers may be set today.

Some of the larger unions concerned in the current wage dispute with Yarrows Limited and Victoria Machinery Depot have scheduled meetings for tonight to discuss the matter.

The Victoria Shipyard Workers' Union is one of those to meet tonight.

Members will hear a report from two delegates who met during the week-end on the mainland with officials of striking Vancouver unions.

William L. White, president of the Marine Workers and Boiler-makers' Industrial Union, Vancouver, said today the inter-city committee meeting ended in what he termed "complete accord."

He indicated the Victoria shipyard strike would start some time this week.

The Victoria workers are seeking a 25-cents-an-hour pay boost. The Vancouver workers, originally demanding 20 cents hourly wage increases, now are holding out for 18 cents.

The Vancouver workers have been on strike since Oct. 18 against Burrard and Pacific Drydocks. These yards and the two in Victoria have a large share of the government's $34,000,000 naval building program.

Delegates also demanded that their race be given the right to vote in Dominion elections.

The revised Indian Act present at the last session of Parliament, was condemned by delegates, who contended it was only a repetition of the previous act.

Other matters supported by the convention were that ownership of Indian land be more clearly defined and that land should not be arbitrarily taken except by negotiations.

Canada Observer At Grain Session

GENEVA, Switzerland (Reuter)—Seventeen countries, including the United States, Britain, France and Russia, so far have indicated they will attend the United Nations' grain conference, which will begin here tomorrow.

Canada will attend the talks as an observer.

Purpose of the conference is to promote bilateral contracts increasing mutual European trade in grains.

Piper Cub Clipper Left Pat Bay Saturday

By JIM McKEACHIE

Search of the Gulf Islands area for a missing Piper Cub Clipper with three young men aboard was resumed today after a fisherman found registration papers from the Vancouver aircraft washed ashore on tiny Curlew Island, off the eastern side of Mayne Island.

The four-seater plane took off from Patricia Bay at 1.40 Saturday afternoon for Vancouver's Sea Island airport and disappeared somewhere along the 40-mile route.

The high-speed rescue launch Montagnais from the R.C.A.F.'s marine squadron at Patricia Bay rushed to Mayne Island this morning to pick up the registration papers from a Mrs. Bennett. They were reported to have been found by a fisherman, Jack Aitken.

Missing are 19-year-old Danny Kohaluk, pilot; Lloyd Miller and Donald Lesperance, all of Vancouver.

PRIVATE PLANES JOIN SEARCH

Sunday, two Dakotas and a Lancaster from the R.C.A.F.'s search and rescue squadron at Vancouver, the rescue launches Montagnais and Huron, and private planes from Victoria and Vancouver scoured the Gulf Islands and Strait of Georgia for the missing aircraft.

The cream-colored plane, property of Vancouver Aero Club, has registration letters CF-GPN.

Kohaluk, with only about 31 hours' experience, learned to fly this summer under an air cadet scholarship. Minimum flying time to get a license to carry passengers is 30 hours.

He took off from Patricia Bay without filing a flight plan and with no earphones for the radio set.

Weather at the time was deteriorating and flying by Victoria Flying Club members was washed out at 2.15.

Dr. Arthur Nash, flying club member, before taking off in his Seabee Sunday to take part in the search, said he wondered when he saw the Clipper taxi out for a flight to Vancouver Saturday.

"I watched them circle the field then head over Moresby Island towards Vancouver. They seemed to be at the bottom of the cloud at about 3,500 feet," he said.

The aircraft had arrived at Patricia Bay with four youths aboard. Twenty-year-old Alex Burton of Vancouver, second-year arts student at U.B.C., remained behind to visit his cousin, Petty Officer George Hendle, a member of the staff at Canadian Services College at Royal Roads.

While they would not divulge at this time what was taken, it is understood small amounts of cash were secured at the Colwood and Goldstream beer parlors. George Edgar's Garage at Colwood Corners and an apartment in the View Royal Apartments were also broken into.

Ask Public Aid To Track Hit-Run Fatality Driver

City police today appealed to the public for any information to aid them in the hunt for the hit-and-run driver who struck and killed 80-year-old William Savidge, 3008 Douglas Street, Friday evening.

The retired construction man, a 41-year resident of Victoria, was pronounced dead at Royal Jubilee Hospital 70 minutes after he had been struck by an old model sedan car at 6.15 in the 3000 block of Douglas.

His death was the seventh for Victoria this year from traffic accidents.

The impact rocketed Savidge through space for 50 feet. Several bones in his body were broken by the terrific impact.

Although a traffic rush was on at the time police have little information to aid them in their search for the driver of the death car.

Police are seeking a dark blue sedan of the vintage between 1928 and 1931. They have some glass from the headlight of the vehicle left at the scene.

Car was proceeding north and struck Savidge when he had alighted from the bus and was about halfway across the street.

Red Columns Enter Lhasa

KALIMPONG, Northern India (Reuter)—Chinese Communist columns have entered Lhasa, the Tibetan capital, after a sweep over the frontier and across Tibet, it was reported today.

Reliable sources here reported today that hostilities ended soon after the Chinese had marched into the capital.

The source said the Tibetan government has accepted Chinese proposals for the future of the country.

The Chinese Communists began their march on Lhasa Sunday month.

Many Tibetans are reported to have joined the army along the way.

CPO Charles N. Stroud, flown home from Korea during the week-end, is here for the funeral of his son, four-year-old Ronald, who died from burns Thursday after his pyjamas had caught fire.

Discover Witness In Fatal Accident

Exhaustive Police Search For Driver Of Car In Savidge Death

City police have uncovered a witness who followed the alleged hit-and-run car from the scene of Friday night's fatal accident in the 3000 block of Douglas Street.

Entire police traffic squad is participating in the job of tracking down the driver of the car which struck 80-year-old William Savidge, 3008 Douglas Street. Savidge died 70 minutes later in hospital from multiple injuries.

WILLIAM SAVIDGE

Sgt. Brooke Douglas said the witness followed the alleged car north on Douglas Street, east on Toimie Avenue and down Alder Street.

Police following the route found portions of the glass from the car's headlight at the foot of Alder. Other pieces were picked up at the scene.

An inquest into the Savidge death will be held tomorrow morning at 10.30 at Sands Mortuary.

Savidge was rocketed 50 feet into space by the terrific impact. His shoes, walking cane and portions of his clothing were scattered over a large area.

Police are urging the public to provide them with any information to further aid in the hunt and to build their case against the driver.

Car was proceeding north on Douglas. Savidge had alighted from a bus and was about in the middle of the road when the collision took place.

Savidge was a 41-year resident of Victoria. He retired 15 years ago after working on local construction jobs for more than 25 years.

Savidge is survived by a sister, Mrs. Eliza Woodrow, 69 Lurline Place, a nephew, Frederick, at that address and another nephew in the east.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at 3.30 from Sands.

Farmer Held After Weird Shooting Case

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP)—A 29-year-old farmer is in custody here today, charged with attempted murder in the strange case of a triple shooting with a single bullet.

Lean, lantern-jawed Herbert Deering is accused of firing a one-in-a-million shot from a high-powered rifle which struck his 10-month-old nephew, his sister-in-law and his wife in quick succession.

The shooting occurred in the tiny Manitoulin Island hamlet of Ice Lake last Friday, but it wasn't until Saturday that Deering was arrested. Charges were filed Sunday night.

When the victims were first brought to hospital Friday, it was thought they had been shot by a freak bullet from a hunter's gun.

Marine planes flew close cover. Even that was unneeded as the troops ran into only a scattered handful of Chinese Communists. The Reds were eliminated without Marine loss.

To the west, Communists appeared to be digging in or fighting delayed actions; but on the east coast they swarmed to the attack.

BUILD 18-ROOM SCHOOL AT SERVICES COLLEGE

An 18-room school with auditorium will be constructed in conjunction with the housing project for married personnel at the three services training college at Royal Roads.

This was announced by Defence Minister Brooke Claxton today on his arrival at Patricia Bay from Calgary shortly before noon.

The minister, who will remain here until Thursday inspecting military and naval establishments and installations, disclosed that by the end of the year his department will have completed construction of 600 units for married servicemen in this area.

MULTIPLE POLLING COULD UPSET VOTE

Challenge Could Leave City Two Months Without Council, Ald. Pinfold Warns

By AILEEN CAMPBELL

City Council may have to do a "turnabout" on its decision to try out multiple polling stations for the Dec. 14 elections.

Should the city go ahead with its present plan and the election is challenged, Victoria would be without municipal government for at least two months in the opinion of Ald. William Pinfold.

Bereaved Father

CPO. Charles N. Stroud, flown home from Korea during the week-end, is here for the funeral of his son, four-year-old Ronald, who died from burns Thursday after his pyjamas had caught fire.

Hamber May Have Operation

VANCOUVER (CP)—Hon. Eric W. Hamber, former Lieutenant-Governor of B.C. may undergo surgery at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., today.

Mr. Hamber left here some days ago for Rochester and clinic authorities said he might be operated on at once. Reason for the surgery was not disclosed. He is 70 years of age.

Triple Tragedy

WALKERTON, Ont. (CP)—Provincial police here said Howard Evarest, his wife Marie, and their two-year-old daughter were found in the kitchen of their home today, shot through the head. They described the tragedy as double murder and suicide.

"The city would be without a quorum as there are six seats to be filled out of 10," he said.

"One person could throw a deliberate monkey-wrench into the whole city election by just figuring ahead of time he would be willing to pay the $100 penalty for repeat voting."

Up to Jan. 14, one month after the election anyone can challenge it. The matter would go to court and there would be an additional two months before another election could be held.

NEED LEGISLATIVE CONSENT

"If council and the public want multiple polling I am not opposed providing it is done legally, but we would have to get legislative consent and approval and it is too late for this election," Ald. Pinfold said.

The present council approval of a plan for four additional stations to the central station is illegal in the eyes of Ald. Pinfold, who, with Ald. Hilda Baxter, voted against it at the last City Council meeting.

Various city groups at a special meeting last week asked that the number be increased to nine with the central station. Mayor Percy George and Ald. Harold Diggon of the legislative committee endorsed the request, which must be approved by council.

"I have been opposed and do oppose the principle, but I am not opposed to multiple polling if the public want it, providing it is done legally," said Ald. Pinfold.

R. Stewart of the City Parks Department reported to city police today four young men wearing hip-waders and with a belt of ammunition, made unsuccessful efforts to catch ducks in Beacon Hill Park early Sunday morning. There was no shooting.

City Pilots In Search For Missing Plane

At their own personal expense, members of Victoria Flying Club Sunday joined search for missing Vancouver plane with three youths aboard. Pilots being allotted areas to search by club president Frank

Little Hope For Safety Of Three Vancouver Men Missing In Plane

By JIM McKEACHIE

Experienced pilots today offered little hope the three young Vancouver men who were aboard a single-engine Piper Cub Clipper when it disappeared Saturday were alive.

Negative results of a thorough air-sea combing of the Gulf of Georgia and the Gulf Islands Sunday, plus finding of what is believed to be the plane's registration card on a beach on Curlew Island, probably means 19-year-old Danny Kohaluk, pilot, and his passengers, Lloyd Miller and Donald Lesperance, all of Vancouver, perished in the icy waters of the gulf.

The card was found by a fisherman, Jack Aitken, on the tiny island which lies off the east side of Mayne Island. When last seen by Dr. Arthur Nash, Victoria Flying Club member who watched the cream-colored aircraft take off for its Sea Island base, it was at about 3.50 and headed on a track which would take it between Mayne and Saturna Islands.

The entire area was intensively searched Sunday by an armada of about 30 planes—R.C.A.F. and civilian—and the high-speed rescue craft Huron and Montagnais from the air forces marine squadron at Patricia Bay.

All saw the same things as Victoria Flying Club president and myself—miles and miles of water and tree-covered islands with a few scattered farms and fields. But no sign of the missing plane.

Throughout the day there was perfect visibility. We took off in Copley's Stinson Voyager at 7.15 Sunday morning—almost two hours before the first Vancouver planes were in the air.

That shows how the local pilots organized to get the search under way without waiting for

Women File Objection At Hearing

An increase in the wholesale price of fluid milk from the present price of 12 cents per quart to 14½ cents was asked of the B.C. Milk Board today by dairymen of Victoria, Duncan and Nanaimo.

Request was made by A. G. Lambrick, president of the Vancouver Island Dairymen's Association, at a public hearing held today at Knights of Pythias Hall, Cormorant Street.

He based the request on the following points: Increased cost of feed and materials, increased demand for constant supplies of low-temperature milk, and increased cost of labor.

"Costs are higher on Vancouver Island than on the mainland," he said. "We have drier summers which make food production difficult, and therefore have to pay extra freight on feed from the mainland."

He pointed out that farm labor is harder to find, since workers want jobs with regular hours and higher pay.

"The whole labor picture is changing," he said, "and farmers are going to be forced to comply with new labor conditions."

The move for an increase in price was supported by Robert McCulloch, Vancouver, president of the Milk Drivers' and Dairy Employees' Union, who said that the employees are working longer hours than those in other industries, and that distributors here cannot afford to raise wages or reduce hours without a price increase in milk.

Hearing was conducted by E. C. Carr, chairman of the milk board, and was attended by producers, distributors and the general public. It will continue this afternoon, when producers will present their case through their counsel, John G. Gould, M.L.A.

Protests were lodged against an increase by representatives of the I.O.E. and Local Council of Women, who will speak at the afternoon session.

ENTER LHASA

KALIMPONG, Northern India (Reuters)—Chinese Communist columns have entered Lhasa, the Tibetan capital, after a sweep over the frontier and across Tibet, it was reported today.

Reliable sources here reported hostilities ended soon after the Chinese had marched into the capital.

The source said the Tibetan government had accepted Chinese proposals for the future of the country.

Proposals which the Tibetan National Assembly has been discussing since last week, were understood to have contained a Chinese assurance that Peiping would not interfere with Tibet's internal administration.

FIRST SNOW FOR VANCOUVER

VANCOUVER (CP)—Santa Claus weather came to Vancouver today—the first snow of the season.

It fell in suburban districts shortly after noon, the large flakes melting as they struck the ground.

Colder weather was forecast with Arctic air moving in from northern sections of the province.

Venezuelan Junta Chief Assassinated

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP)—Lt.-Col. Carlos Delgado Chalbaud, president of Venezuela's military junta, was slain today. A government announcement gave no details of the shooting.

Delgado Chalbaud was one of the leaders of the army revolt which toppled the government of Romulo Gallegos in 1948. He had been minister of war under President Gallegos, but joined other army officers in overthrowing the constitutional government.

Many members of the Accion Democratica Party, which supported Gallegos, considered Delgado Chalbaud a traitor to the government. For many weeks after the November, 1948 coup he was accompanied by army guards wherever he went.

The junta said the army carried out the 1948 coup because of the "incapacity" of Gallegos' administration, which was accused of being led by "extremist" labor elements who were threatening a general strike.

Venezuela has nearly 4,000,000 people, many of them illiterate Indians, and an area of 352,143 square miles.

F.B.I. TRAPS KIDNAPPER

Woman Doctor Held In Santa Fe Case

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP)—Santa Fe was divided today in shocked reaction to the ransom kidnapping of little Linda Stamm.

Doctors and friends rallied to the aid of Dr. Nancy Campbell, 43, prominent woman physician charged with the kidnapping for $20,000 ransom.

However, other parents joined nine-year-old Linda's mother, Mrs. Allen Stamm, in hoping the accused woman never is freed again if convicted. Conviction carries a penalty ranging from five years' imprisonment to death by electrocution.

The formal charge of kidnapping for ransom was filed Sunday night and bail set at $25,000.

Linda was lured from her home Friday. She spent that night drugged and wrapped in blankets on the dirt floor of a shack at an abandoned ranch. There was no glass in the windows, no door in the doorway, and temperature was nine above zero.

TRAP CLOSED

The blonde schoolgirl was released Saturday night after agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation had closed a trap on Dr. Campbell as she reached for the ransom money at the gate of the Stamm estate on the wooded outskirts of Santa Fe.

Mrs. Stamm, 32-year-old mother of Linda, told reporters she hoped Yale-educated Dr. Campbell never would be free again "to bring to others what she has brought to us in heartaches and worry."

A. L. Zinn, lawyer for Dr. Campbell, said friends and doctors in Santa Fe had offered hundreds of thousands of dollars for bond. He said Dr. Campbell would be taken to Albuquerque, "where she can have all the medical care necessary."

Where 10 Died In Explosion On Armistice Day

Rescuers probe the wreckage of the Leduc Hotel for remains of those who perished when the building was razed by a blast and resulting fire Saturday. Sixteen persons were sent to hospitals, of whom seven have been released. Estimates of loss vary from $100,000 to $300,000. (CP Photo)—See story, Page 3.

ONE WOMAN'S DAY

By NANCY HODGES

WITCHES AND WHATNOT

I WONDER HOW many of my readers know that a strong belief in witchcraft and its accompanying mumbo-jumbo still lingers in certain sections of Nova Scotia and Ontario? And that "charming" or "pow-wow" is still looked upon as the most certain cure for certain ailments—not by native Indians only, but by many descendants of German origin living in those two provinces?

It was news to me, too, until I read the two illuminating and entertaining booklets I obtained recently from the National Museum of Canada, and which are devoted to some of the folklore in which this country is so rich, but of which little is known to the general run of Canadians. One of these booklets deals with the folklore of Lunenburg County, N.S., the other with that of Waterloo County, Ont.

EGGS AND CHURCH

IN UPPER LA HAVE, Lunenburg County, one popular belief is that if you take the first egg laid by a hen on Good Friday morning, put it in the bosom of your dress to hide it, then go to church, you can tell all the witches in the congregation. They will have a milk stool turned upside down on their heads, or some other symbol that you had never seen before.

Because of their supernatural powers, the witches will know you are hiding the egg on you, so you must take care not to let any of them get near enough to crush the egg, because if they do they will have wicked power over you!

STILL EXISTS

THAT SAME superstitious belief also lingers in Lunenburg town, where Miss Helen Creighton, the Nova Scotian ethnologist who did most of the research in that province, had a supposed witch point out to her during a church service. In Blandford May Day is still called "Witch Day," and it is commonly accepted that you shouldn't borrow or take from anybody on that particular day. This is a survival of the old superstition that a witch must borrow something from your person or home before she can cast her spell. Perhaps Blandford consoles itself with the thought that if a witch casts a spell on you it will last only seven years and must be remembered to be effective.

FARMS AND FANCIES

MANY OF the rural residents of Nova Scotia and Ontario go in for farming, it is natural that the witches "hexe" should be directed against farm animals. Incidentally that word "hexe," which has come down to us in slang parlance, is the old German word for witch.

One legend has it that an old woman came to a farmhouse in Wilnot township, Ontario, just a few years ago and asked for food. It was refused her, so as she left she called the cows, at the same time holding up three fingers. When milking time came around, it was found that on every cow three teats produced blood and one milk. The next morning the same thing happened again.

COUNTER-CHARMS

BY THIS TIME the farmer was so alarmed that he called in an Amish witch-doctor who "cured" the cows by setting the milk on to boil, and giving the milk a thorough whipping while it boiled! Another counter-charm against the "hexing" of cattle is to smear the hinge of a door with the milk of a bewitched cow so that every time the door is opened the witch is tortured.

In Whynacht's Settlement, Lunenburg, some old farmers still claim that if a pig is bewitched the best cure is to take a pair of scissors and cut three crosses of hair off the pig's back. By so doing, they say, the person who bewitched the pig will get three cuts on his—or her—back. Another popular superstition there is that if the cattle are bewitched, you should take off your waistcoat, turn it inside out, put three stones in the pocket and then repeat the three highest words in the Bible (Father, Son and Holy Ghost). That is supposed to cripple the witch so badly that she will depart hastily!

Impressive Services Held At Esquimalt Cenotaph

Esquimalt, which has seen thousands of sailors and soldiers set off for war in the past century, Saturday paid tribute to those who did not return at a moving ceremony held at the Cenotaph in Memorial Park.

The "Salvation" Army Band played "Abide With Me" to open the service. "Last Post" was played by a navy bugler.

As the last notes died away a cannon shot marked the beginning of two minutes' silence. A second round ended it, with the bugler playing "Reveille" as the standards carried by the many detachments were raised.

While Pipe-Major Nancy Chalmers of Victoria Girls' Pipe Band played the lament, "Flowers of the Forest," wreaths were laid on the memorial by representatives of the services and local organizations.

Capt. H. F. Pullen, officer commanding H.M.C.S. Ontario, took the salute from the marching units after the ceremony.

All Liberal Officers Elected By Acclamation

Officers of the Victoria Central Liberal Association, headed by G. A. A. Hebden, have been re-elected by acclamation for another term.

This was announced today following the closing of nominations for the annual meeting scheduled next Monday evening at 8 at Liberal Headquarters, Government Street.

Other officers: R. B. Worley, first vice-president; Mrs. L. Smith, second vice-president; Mrs. Blair Reid, treasurer, and Arthur H. Cox, secretary.

Executive members will be elected by the ward associations at meetings following the annual session.

In addition to hearing reports from the officers at the annual meeting, members will be given addresses by the three Victoria members of the legislature—Education Minister and Provincial Secretary W. T. Straith, Madam Speaker Nancy Hodges, and D. J. Proudfoot.

LADYSMITH—Almost every organization in the city, and many private citizens, laid wreaths on Ladysmith war memorial Saturday following a ceremony attended by 100 war veterans and residents. Dr. J. W. Neville had charge of Remembrance Day arrangements, and Carl Walker was parade marshal. Mayor Leonard Ryan gave a brief address during the ceremony.

Large Parade Held By Duncan Veterans

DUNCAN—With its largest Remembrance Day parade ever, Duncan held services Saturday at the Memorial Cross of Sacrifice, where Rev. Canon T. M. Hughes, Rev. C. M. Kerr, Rev. H. T. Archbold and Rev. F. H. G. Lightly conducted the service. J. E. Moore was parade marshal, and lament was played during the service by Piper J. Low.

'Prepare For War' Admiral Advises

Never Was Need Greater, Says Creery, At Vancouver Remembrance Service

By Times Staff Reporter

VANCOUVER—"There never was a time when there was a greater need for us to be prepared for war."

This was the sombre, hard-hitting message delivered by Rear-Admiral Wallace B. Creery to thousands of Vancouver people who assembled Saturday for the annual Remembrance Day service around the Cenotaph in Victory Square.

The Pacific Coast Flag Officer spoke in plain words which startled some of those present. Preparedness was his entire theme.

He warned those jamming the intersecting streets around the downtown war monument that Remembrance Day should not be merely a habit. Rather, he suggested, it should be a time to recognize past mistakes and to resolve not to let the same mistakes occur again.

He recalled there were some in the years before World War II who, guided by experience, feared war and advocated armed preparedness. He regretted their words had fallen on deaf ears.

MAY HAVE BEEN AVERTED
Had their advice been taken and free nations shown their might, he said, war might have been averted. And had war been made in the face of such might, the result would have been quick and decisive; widespread suffering would have been averted.

Referring briefly the present world situation, the admiral declared freedom-loving people could not afford to ignore the lesson of experience this time.

He went on to say preparedness meant more than increasing the strength of the armed services. He made it clear industry and workers would have to be ready to do their part if called upon.

Representing Victoria in the parade were members of the reserve naval division, H.M.C.S. Malahat, ten U.N.T.D. cadets from Victoria College and 18 Rainbow Sea Cadets. The Victoria representatives came here aboard the reserve unit's training ship, H.M.C.S. Saucy, Ste. Marie on Friday night.

The ship returned Sunday with Admiral Creery aboard.

Four Injured In Duncan Collision

DUNCAN—Following a collision Friday night at Island Highway and Fisher Road, between cars driven by Sub-Lt. C. M. Minty and Robert Wade, Cobble Hill, four persons were taken to hospital.

Injured were Lieut. Minty, with a possible fractured skull; Mrs. Minty, with a broken arm, and two passengers in Wade's car, Marie Rendall and Jenny Byrne, who were treated for minor injuries.

King Enjoys Brief Sandringham Visits

This is another in a series of eight articles on the Royal Family.

By MARGARET SAVILLE

When the King is at Buckingham Palace he is associated with the life of the nation's capital, with politics and economics and the official social round. When he goes to Sandringham, in Norfolk, he transfers that personal association to the other half of Britain, the half that lives by agriculture. There the King concerns himself with the land and its cultivation and its crafts, for Sandringham is a great farming and forestry estate which provided the royal example of modern rustication.

When the King arrives at the imposing imitation-Tudor mansion built by his grandfather Edward VII nearly 90 years ago, one of his first appointments is to receive the reports of his managers about his properties.

The Sandringham estate covers thousands of acres and the King owns several villages as well as a church and an inn, the picturesque little "Feathers."

So, formally, if not actively, the King must concern himself among other things, with the price of milk and the price of beer, the state of the roams, many of them bordered with flowering shrubs, and the state of his tenants' kitchens.

Then, too, the King must express his interest in all the local rural events, accompanied by the Queen and Princess Margaret when the occasion requires. They watch farming demonstrations and attend shows, and the Queen belongs to the Women's Institute branch and is a patroness of the schools. Every New Year a special dance is given in the white ballroom at Sandringham House for the staff and the tenants, at which the King and Queen initiate the festivities by partnering their oldest guests and helping to serve the refreshments later on.

KEEPS IN BACKGROUND

Actually, country pursuits hold little attraction for the Queen. She likes the open air and enjoys gardening, but she has never been fond of riding and is frankly nervous of cattle and pigs. Though the queen dutifully walks with her husband on his tours of the estate, she always keeps carefully in the background in the farmyard; and while the mechanically-minded King puts his head into the agricultural machinery to see exactly how it works, the Queen probably stays outside the barn admiring the view.

She has never been able to understand how wheels go round, anyway, although in common with many other wives she is prepared to regard her husband's interest with affectionate tolerance.

The King is fond of Sandringham, for he spent a good deal of time there during his boyhood. He was born in the Small York Cottage which is now the estate office, and learnt to ride and hunt and shoot among the woods and fields. Nearly every Christmas of his life has been passed with his Royal family at the big stone house, for the tradition of Christmas which Queen Victoria established—when everybody must gather round the dinner table—has long been regarded as a strict law in the Royal Household.

Occasionally in spring and autumn, the King manages to get to his Norfolk home for a few days especially to entertain a small-bachelor shooting party made up of perhaps half-a-dozen men of his own age who have moved in the Court circle for years past. These brief breaks are greatly prized by the King, for they are the only times he can ever have contemporary male society on anything approaching an informal footing.

Few people realize how essentially lonely a monarch has to be. Set apart from his fellows, he cannot make friendships in the simple normal manner. There are no opportunities for it in the life of a court. That is why the King is closer to the King than most wives to their husbands. She is necessarily his only real confidant, the one person with whom he can frankly discuss his problems and who can ever presume to argue and disagree with him.

REAL RELAXATION

All the ordinary masculine company of club and bar and sporting event and even the fire-side is alien to the King. He did enjoy some semblance of it years ago as Prince Albert, but since he has set upon the Throne such relaxations are denied him. So when the King can get away to Sandringham for a spell he finds the keenest pleasure in the long days in the open air, the hearty help-yourself tea in the hall and then later in the evening, after the inevitable "boxes" have received attention, a game of billiards or darts and drinks and conversation in easy chairs grouped round the fire.

The Queen once said to a friend: "The King's little shooting holidays always seem to do him a lot of good." She has been a Royalty herself long enough now to be able to appreciate exactly how much they do indeed benefit her husband.

As the King has grown older, he has given up tennis and squash, and shooting has become his chief recreation. He likes it more because of the amount of concentration it requires. The King is an extremely active man, quite incapable of physical rest unless he is actually sleeping.

Brought up in the rigid Victorian manner by Queen Mary, who abhors idleness, the King is constitutionally unable to enjoy what Princess Margaret sometimes describes as "a nice little do-nothing."

To him relaxation always means a change of occupation and so he derives his refreshment from the careful consideration and concentration required for good marksmanship. Ballistics naturally appeal to him and he has a fund of scientific knowledge about them, the gunroom at Sandringham being a place he always finds fascinating on a wet afternoon.

... walk in country

After the King's illness, his doctors advised he might well give up shooting which entailed so much walking and standing. They were probably surprised by their Royal patient's furious and determined resistance, and the characteristic tenacity with which he worked out ways and means by which he could continue his favorite sport and at the same time avoid any undue strain on his legs.

Now the King goes shooting in Norfolk in a land-rover car which carries him comfortably over the rough ground. A special folding seat is also taken along in case the King needs it. Duck shooting has been expressly forbidden by the doctors because of the danger of the King getting his legs damp-chilled as he stood about in the marshes, but the King is hoping successfully to circumvent that objection, too. He is now having made an experimental pair of specially-heated thigh boots to ensure he can keep dry and warm on his excursions.

Highlight of the year at Sandringham, is of course, the Royal Family's Christmas sojourn. This is presided over by Queen Mary in fact, although the Queen herself is officially the hostess. The silver-haired Queen-Mother sees that everything is conducted exactly as it has been for generations past, that pattern of Christmas which Albert the Prince Consort borrowed from his native Germany to enchant the little English Queen who was his bride.

Queen Mary satisfies herself that the Yule log is brought in, and the paneled hall and dining-room decorated with holly and mistletoe, and a tree erected in the smaller drawing-room, appropriately adorned with tinsel and scarlet-wrapped gift boxes. (For years she hung the Christmas tree personally, but now she must supervise a footman.)

Carols are sung by the local church choir and the Christmas dinner follows the ancient menu, with the King carving the first slice from the roast turkey, and the pudding brought ceremonially in, blazing gaily, by the chef in his tall white hat.

There is a little tea party for the children, when crackers are pulled and everybody wears paper caps and the Queen plays the piano for the old-fashioned games like musical chairs. Queen Mary watches it all from her high-backed seat, proud and contented to see the King and Queen continuing this tradition of Royal Family Life.

Leduc Man States Gas Roared In

Rushed To Have Flow Shut Off; Says He Heard Hotel Blast Shortly After

EDMONTON (CP)—An Imperial Oil Company official said today that gas from the Devon oil field had been turned into mains leading to Leduc two days before the explosion which leveled the Leduc Hotel and killed 10 persons.

A. L. Laberge, assistant field superintendent for the Imperial Oil Company at Devon, said the Leduc-Calgary Utility Company, which was to supply the town of Leduc with natural gas "asked us to turn on the gas Thursday so they could pressure up the lines and determine whether there were leaks or not."

Mr. Laberge said he believed the gas would go only to the outskirts of Leduc, where a valve would prevent it from entering the town lines.

NO DISTRIBUTION

Officials of the utility company said distribution to the town had not been started and that there was only a remote possibility the gas had entered the main line pipes in the town. It was scheduled to begin Saturday, but had been postponed.

Cluness Evans, operator of a service station about half to three-quarters of a mile from downtown Leduc, said he heard gas coming through a lead-in pipe to his service station Saturday morning.

The service station is at the end of the gas line near the south side of the town half a mile from the downtown area.

Evans said the gas line from the oilfield enters Leduc on the opposite side of the town from his service station. He said it passes through the downtown area before reaching his premises.

Indians Seek Same Status As In U.S.A.

ALBERTA, B.C. (BUP)—An Indian convention at Alert Bay has urged the Dominion government increase the proposed assistance grant.

The convention asked an increase from $300,000 to $1,000,000, to place Canadian Indians on an equal basis with those of United States.

Delegates also demanded that their race be given the right to vote in Dominion elections.

The revised Indian Act present at the last session of Parliament, was condemned by delegates, who contended it was only a repetition of the previous act. Other matters supported by the convention were that ownership of Indian land be more clearly defined and that land should not be arbitrarily taken except by negotiations.

OPERATORS 'LOCKED OUT'

Phone Co. Workers Level New Charge

NEW YORK (AP)—Long-distance telephone operators in New York City charged today they were "locked out" when they reported for work after striking equipment workers had removed picket lines.

The American Telephone and Telegraph Company said the charge of lockout "is absurd."

The C.I.O. equipment workers went on strike against the Bell System in 44 states last Thursday in a dispute over wages and length of contract.

Removal of the picket lines was part of the "hit and run" picketing tactics of the C.I.O. Communications Workers of America to snarl Bell System long-distance lines. The flash picketing was designed to catch management unawares and throw long-distance service into chaos before enough supervisors could be mobilized to man switchboards.

British Official Raps Russ Plan On Germany

LONDON (AP)—Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin said today a Russian plan to end the armed occupation of Germany is "unacceptable."

He hinted strongly that Britain will therefore reject a Russian bid for a Big Four meeting to discuss the removal of troops and the unification of Germany under a single government as proposed at Prague recently by Russia and her east European satellites.

Bevin told the House of Commons:

"In the opinion of the British government, the Prague communiqué does not afford an adequate basis for dealing with these great problems.

"It consists of proposals that have been made before—and have been shown to be unacceptable to the other occupying powers and, in addition, to the German people.

"Moreover, despite representations addressed to it by the Western Powers on this subject last May, the Soviet government has so far refused to disband the large and heavily armed quasi-military organization which has been created in eastern Germany.

"These and other violations of the Potsdam agreement by the Soviet government suggest that discussions designed to secure the carrying out of the agreement could have little purpose."

D. Carapata Not Guilty

SAN FRANCISCO (CP)—Douglas Carapata was acquitted on a charge of beating his niece, Mary McIntyre, formerly of Vancouver.

The jury was given the case late Saturday afternoon.

The 14-day trial was characterized by conflicting testimony, but through it all Carapata insisted he was innocent.

Defence lawyer Emmet Haggerty contended that blows inflicted on the 25-year-old advertising-agency secretary had so affected her mind that she was incapable of remembering who attacked her.

Haggerty laid stress on her original story—told when she regained consciousness after the beating—that she had awakened in her blood-stained bed to find a stranger standing over her.

Later, emerging from a long coma, she testified Carapata had struck her with a hammer.

She added that when she regained consciousness shortly after the hammer attack she had telephoned Carapata to come to her aid "because he was my only relative here and it seemed the natural thing to do."

The Trouble Makers

ARMISTICE DAY IN THIS YEAR OF grace 1950 has gone. Peoples in various parts of the world attended religious services, laid the customary wreaths and other symbols of remembrance on various kinds of inanimate objects, and took their traditional vows. But, despite the fact that more than three decades have gone by since the end of the First Great War, that unparalleled loss of human life and material treasure resulted from the conflict that started in September, 1939, and finished in the late summer of 1945, three or four minor wars are still being waged.

The situation in Asia is disturbing. Agencies at work there obviously are deriving their inspiration and support from the men who are running the affairs of the Soviet Union. What can be done about these matters, what ought to be done, presents a puzzle to all decent-thinking peoples. It is nevertheless a puzzle demanding a solution before this troubled old planet explodes again. If it should explode again, with all the diabolical contrivances of the scientists put into weapon form, what we call our civilization will come to an end.

This is not intended to convey the idea that the statesmen of the free world are so bankrupt in that brand of diplomacy which humanity demands be exercised in the interests of common sense. Leaders of public thought in the English-speaking countries, for example, have done their level best to persuade the trouble-makers to mend their ways in their own interests and in the interests of the ordinary folk of many races, creeds and color. It has been, and still is, a thankless task.

Who is responsible for the difficulty? The answer to this question is a simple one: Stalin and Company in Moscow—aided by their "fellow travelers" in this and other countries—are to blame. They prate about the imperialistic aggression in Korea and elsewhere, knowing full well that monopolistic Communism is at the root of the present discontents, that the few "wicked men" who constitute the Politburo in Moscow are the men who have made up their minds to try to conquer the world and run it according to Marxian dogma. And recent revelations to the effect that Canadian Communists are ready to move into action by way of sabotage and other underground activities immediately Stalin and Company issue the order cannot go unheeded—despite the indignant denials of members of the Labor Progressive Party, as Canada's Communists call themselves. Members of local "cells," incidentally, had better watch their steps.

Reviving Interest In B.C. Steel

THOUGH THE ESTABLISHMENT OF a major steel plant in British Columbia has been a conversational subject, and little more, for many years, currently revived interest in the project may be taken as an index of growing industrial confidence in British Columbia. Doubtless the proposal of C. D. Hobbs, president of the Vancouver Rolling Mills Ltd., will receive careful study as one means of achieving a Pacific Coast source for materials which are now shipped in. It will be a matter for the experts, of course, to determine the advisability of the plan to create a pig-iron smelter on terms he has made public.

That development follows discussion of the subject last week by Hon. R. W. Mayhew, Federal Minister of Fisheries. An ardent supporter of the creation of the industry in this province, Victoria's representative in the Dominion Cabinet brought a fresh approach to the question when he remarked on the growing economic strength of Canada's Pacific region and the increased feasibility of such an undertaking.

Few know better than Mr. Mayhew the essentials for a project of that magnitude. A steel industry demands very substantial financial resources. To live in its own highly competitive field, it must, too, have ready access to vast sources of raw material. The Victoria member suggests that the latter of those requirements may be satisfied in regions not far removed from this capital city of British Columbia.

The need for steel both in war and peace requires no recapitulation here. It is encouraging to note the minister's persistent interest in the subject. The idea is not being pigeon-holed to satisfy sentiment in another part of Canada; to which development here might provide competition of a serious nature.

Do They Really Want Peace?

THERE IS A GOOD DEAL IN WHAT the British Prime Minister decided about the so-called Peace Congress in Sheffield. Mr. Attlee said, and quite rightly, "It is as if the law allowed the 'rough' to use a knife or a club, but condemned the police for using their truncheons." He went on to say that the only hope for peace was to make aggression so dangerous that not even Stalin would risk it.

On many occasions we have alluded in these columns to the Canadian Peace Congress whose headquarters are at 49 Walker Avenue in Toronto. Those who belong to this organization have used an enormous amount of allegedly persuasive eloquence in their advocacy of outlawing the atom bomb. The appeal they are making is a spurious one. It is an appeal which attempts to direct its persuasion on people who have neither the desire nor the capacity to think things through for themselves. In other words, unfortunately, there seems to be an element in human society which tries to lull itself into a false sense of security nationally, and internationally, without the least intelligent study of history.

In this day and age, and in view of the threatening developments in Asia and in Europe, it is about time that the citizens of this and other free countries got down to brass tacks and tried to draw a blueprint for themselves of what would happen to them if, for example, the men in the Kremlin tried out their latest lethal weapon on a war-weary world.

Grim Panorama As Smoke Of U.S. Elections Clears Away

By JOSEPH and STEWART ALSOP from Washington

THERE are a great many obviously important things to be said about the recent voting in the U.S. It proves, once and for all, that conspicuous, belligerent organization by the labor groups on one side, quickly generates equally effective counter-organization on the other. It dramatizes the decline of the once all-powerful big city machines, as in New York and Chicago. It puts Sen. Robert A. Taft at the top of the list of contenders of the G.O.P. nomination in 1952.

But the really central fact about this election is something at once bigger and deeper. In plain language, the result will surely subject the American constitutional and party system to the severest test in history, excepting the test by blood and fire in 1860.

This is bound to be so, since the result has given immense new power and authority to the conservative, isolationist Republican group headed by Sen. Taft.

CRITICAL TIME
This has happened, moreover, at a moment when the dangers threatening the United States are more fearful; the problems facing her are more complex; the responsibilities she must carry are more burdensome, than ever before in history.

The trouble ahead can be foreseen by the simple act of listing the great bills which will be the major issues in the next Congress. These are: a military appropriations bill running around $50 billion; an universal military service bill or some other unpopular program for solving the manpower problem; bills to continue economic aid to allies and to add massive military aid; a bill to relieve the famine-induced crisis in Yugoslavia; and bills to authorize the staggering taxes and other disagreeable economic measures which all this effort of national survival will make inescapably necessary. What will the resurgent Republican isolationists do about all this?

IMMENSE STAKES

The simple case of Yugoslavia is enough to indicate how immense the stakes in the game will be. The clear purpose of the Chinese intervention in Korea is to tie down our forces there, and thus create a situation favorable to Kremlin adventures elsewhere. Yugoslavia is the Kremlin's public enemy number one, and much weakened by a disastrous famine. The sum needed to help the Yugoslavs, about $100 million, is small potatoes compared to the rest of the national program. But the Yugoslav aid bill is sure to be bitterly and damagingly debated, if not torn to pieces. This reaction in Washington may quite possibly be the factor that persuades the Kremlin to launch an attack on the Yugoslavs.

Even a successful attack on Yugoslavia will be enough to make the Western alliance against Soviet aggression come apart like the one-hoss-shay. So can weakening or abandonment of the effort to rebuild the defenses of the West, or, indeed, any American failure to carry through any part of the "survival" program, the largest, the most costly, the most controversial ever offered in this country in peacetime, must now be presented to a Congress led by men inherently hostile to it, and in many cases already committed against it.

Loose Ends

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

THE recent United States election was bad news for the free world, good news for dear old Uncle Joe. Not because the resurgent Republican Party is friendly to Communism or because the Democratic Party is particularly virtuous, but because the election result is calculated to bewilder the American people, disturb the United States' friends abroad and weaken its foreign policy.

This is a much more complicated business than Canadians understand. You have to go to Washington to grasp the forces in play and to realize that the recent election was one of the most important of recent times.

THE story begins with the Presidential election of 1948. In that contest Mr. Dewey refused to grapple with any issue, floated through the campaign on a cloud and looked down on the American people like a god. Mr. Truman plunged to the grass roots and the whistle stops. He conducted a slugging match the like of which had never been seen before. The Olympian statesman was defeated. The slugger from Missouri won victory single-handed.

When the recent Congressional election approached, the Republicans resolved that they would not make the same mistake again. If dirt was to be thrown they would throw it. If the grass roots—or the gutter—could be reached they would reach it. So they turned Mr. Truman's methods against him.

AT FIRST the Republicans intended to fight the election on domestic issues, on the slogan of Free Enterprise versus Socialism. That strategy was scrapped at midsummer when the Korean war seemed to be going badly. Overnight the Republican campaign was shifted from Free Enterprise to McCarthyism. Since Senator McCarthy's attack on Mr. Acheson as a bungler, an appeaser of Communism and a friend of Alger Hiss was proving effective, the Republican high command concentrated everything on this smear.

Thus the real issue of the election was the foreign policy of the United States. The bipartisan policy on which the partnership of free world had been built was maintained as a kind of formality in the election but in fact the Republican party was busily destroying it on every platform by assailing Mr. Acheson, who is its symbol and its chief administrator.

IT MIGHT be said, indeed, that Mr. Acheson was the issue of the election and on this issue the Republicans won a decisive moral victory, though they failed by one seat to capture the Senate.

The Republican theory held that Mr. Truman was too popular, and too obviously an enemy of Communism, to be successfully assailed. But Mr. Acheson was the friend of Hiss, he had tried to do business with the Russians (like Roosevelt and Churchill) after the war and he could be blamed (with monstrous distortion of the facts) for losing China.

This mud, or some of it, stuck. McCarthyism paid off. And it may turn out that the Republicans have ruined the greatest Secretary of State of modern times. Mr. Acheson, in short, as the election suggests, may be too large a political load for Mr. Truman to carry into the Presidential election of 1952. In that case we would witness in Mr. Acheson's dismissal one of the classic tragedies of the democratic system.

HOWEVER, the results of the election are far more important than the fortunes of any individual. The first result is to stagger the Administration, throw it off balance, and involve it in conflict with a Senate which, though the Democrats still have a majority of one vote, actually is opposed to the President, since he has long been quarreling with the right wing of his own party.

That is bad enough, but worse is the danger that, under such conditions, the bipartisan foreign policy will become too much of a fiction to deceive anyone, least of all the Russians, that strong action in foreign affairs will be undermined by the bitter feud between two evenly-balanced parties.

If the Republican party had an alternative policy to suggest it could be argued that the present jockeying for power was a healthy democratic process. In fact, the Republicans have offered no alternative policy. They have offered only a smear of Mr. Acheson and obviously they have no idea what they would do about foreign affairs if they were in office. But there are alarming symptoms.

THE McCarthys of the party seem ready to involve the United States in a war with China and thus to fall into the open bear trap which Stalin has been baiting for the last six months. Still more disturbing, Elder Statesman Hoover has lately made a speech declaring that if the Europeans don't soon show their willingness to fight if necessary then the United States had better give up the idea of defending Europe and retire within the western hemisphere. Mr. Hoover's emotional isolationism—which is shared by the victorious and powerful Senator Taft—is coming once more into the open.

Altogether the election reflects a deep confusion in the American mind, an anger at the loss of China, a search for a convenient scapegoat in the person of Mr. Acheson and a kind of faltering which must have set the vodka flowing in the Politburo.

The Asiatic doesn't know what democracy is. But all we're giving him are slogans. We have to give him food and the tools of peace—what the Communists promise but don't provide.—Union chief Walter Reuther.

Don't Look Now, Mr. Nehru, But . . .

Sideways Look At Manager Plan

Ottawa Citizen

THE success of the city manager system in the United States is often cited as a reason why Ottawa should adopt this method of municipal government. Mr. Richard S. Childs, of the National Municipal League, New York, raised this argument while in Ottawa. But since the situation in American cities is not parallel with Ottawa's, the argument lacks force. Instead of proving that the city manager scheme is good for American cities, proponents of the plan must prove beyond dispute that it is good for Ottawa.

DIFFERENT SYSTEM

In American cities, the heads of departments are elected. Often they are experts in nothing but politics and the distribution of patronage. The result has been inefficiency and corruption in many cities, with an attempt finally made to solve the problem by having an expert, in the form of a city manager, handle the administrative problems of many American cities. In many instances, the city manager system has worked out well. In Ottawa, on the other hand, the heads of departments—the public works commissioner, waterworks commissioner, finance commissioner and so forth—are already experts in their fields, and are appointed to their posts. They owe nothing to political machines or groups of voters. Their sole obligation is to smooth departmental administration. In consequence, the graft and inefficiency which has bedeviled many American municipalities does not exist here.

NO U.S. COMPARISON

While Ottawa's system of municipal government is so different from that of American cities, it seems useless to argue in favor of a city manager plan merely because American municipalities have benefitted from it.

Speaking For Canada

Windsor Star

RECENTLY several Canadian Cabinet ministers have been addressing public audiences, or giving press conferences, in the United States.

These have included Health and Welfare Minister Paul Martin, Trade and Commerce Minister C. D. Howe, External Affairs Minister L. B. Pearson, Finance Minister D. C. Abbott, and Defence Minister Brooke Claxton.

This is not just a coincidence, nor should its implications be overlooked.

KING POLICY
During the long regime of Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, it was rather rare for Cabinet ministers to speak outside their own country. Usually it was only on formal occasions, and in carefully chosen words.

Mr. King was scrupulous about diplomatic niceties. He himself was very careful to utter no phrases in other countries, or about them, to give any offence.

On his frequent visits to Washington, he had grand opportunities to get Canada good publicity. But he refused to give press interviews, afraid lest something he might say would be misinterpreted.

Since Rt. Hon. L. S. St. Laurent has taken over the helm, it is different. Mr. St. Laurent himself is a frank man. And he has given his ministers a "go ahead" signal to speak in the United States or any other country they may visit.

Generally they have used good judgment. But they haven't hesitated to speak their minds. Some have gone right into the United States and told audiences there the United States is holding up Canada's development by not acting on the St. Lawrence waterways. Others have advocated the merging of defence production, now adopted as a policy, or told of Canada's exchange problems and how it is necessary for the United States to keep up her buying from Canada.

GOOD RECEPTION
There have been no repercussions. People of the United States don't regard Canadians as foreigners trying to butt into their affairs, but rather as friendly neighbors suggesting how we can get along better together.

This is good business for Canada. Many in the United States know little about Canada except that it is a vast country, sparsely populated, on the northern half of the continent.

Due to our war effort, the development of our natural resources, and other factors, they now are taking a greater interest in us. Canadian Cabinet ministers, and others, find ready audiences. And, with the shackles off, they can make Canada better known.

Three R's In Europe

By PETER EDSON, NEA Washington Correspondent, from Paris

THERE are three R's to European recovery. First is Relief, now pretty well over. Second is Reconstruction, still going on. Third will be Rearmament, just beginning.

However, there are two main roadblocks to this job.

The first is Germany, and the problem of how to absorb it into the West European community. This involves overcoming ticklish national psychologies. The French have a fear fixation against rearming Germany.

On the other hand, the German psychoanalysis reveals a feeling of "let's you and him fight." This is interpreted as a belief that the United States and western Europe should fight it out with Soviet Russia while the Germans sit on the sidelines in a profitable Swiss-like neutrality.

The fallacy of this, of course, is that Germany will be the first battleground in any next war, and it can't stay out. Convincing the Germans that they should fight for the West still has to be done.

COMMUNISTS STILL PROBLEM

The second main problem is the further defeat of communism in western Europe. The two largest federations of trade unions in France and Italy are still Communist-dominated. Communism in Germany is also potentially dangerous.

In all other countries of western Europe, anti-Communist organizations are in control of the labor movements.

But they still have to do battle with a hard core of west European Communists who are well organized, well disciplined, well financed, experienced and tough.

All these things emphasize that there are still chances that western European recovery will fail. Their governments are weak. Their economies are weaker. It is also necessary to look the successes in western Europe fully in the face, as well as the failures. Here are four principal achievements on the credit side of the ledger:

1. The European Payments Union is working.

2. Next most important step is removal of trade barriers. They are not being reduced fast enough.

3. The Schuman plan, calling for pooling of western Europe's coal and steel resources, is expected to be ready soon for ratification by France, Italy, western Germany and the Benelux countries. There is grave question whether it can be made to succeed without the British.

4. Finally, the creation of a common army, as proposed before the United Nations, will be a long step towards unifying western Europe's defenses.

There is a grave question as to whether the western European nations have the resources—in raw materials and income—to achieve an independent stability. The United States has been making up the deficits by means of Marshall Plan and Military Assistance programs. But as now authorized, this aid will terminate in 1952.

Travel Diary

Another in a Series

By I. NORMAN SMITH

AGRA, India—Well, I've seen it—the Taj Mahal. But let's go back a few hours to get you here and we'll see if we can't sneak up on the Taj. A party of Canadians set out from Delhi by automobile and drove the 125 miles along India's main North and South road. It was a narrow paved surface lined with trees, but right off its borders were nothing but dirt tracks and—in some places—what they call jungle.

Jungle here doesn't mean the Tarzan tree-to-tree stuff through which you can see no sun. It is simply wild or waste land still ruled by animals. Snakes and wolves and hyenas and tigers and all that.

These are the rougher variety and don't stay near the roadside, but let's just describe what we saw from our car windows: monkeys galore, snakes, partridge, heron, parrots colorful in the sun, peacocks, parakeets (is that the way you spell them?) with graceful long tails; pigs that look like anteaters or wild boars and have red eyes and repulsive snouts; donkeys and goats galore; buffalo with horns like twisted tree trunks; cows innumerable (there are 175,000,000 cows in India or one for every two people and of course they roam streets and homes at will for they are sacred and may not be killed or pushed around. They are useful only for their milk); jackals that dart off in the trees; camels plodding along laboriously, their heads in the trees; squirrels and crows and horrible vultures about four feet long; deer, mongooses, a performing bear which danced for us and wrestled its master and smelled to high heaven.

PEOPLE

So much for the wild life. We saw, as well, sick people lying in the dirt on the roadside being forgotten in some cases or being tended by a medicine man; wondrously colorful groups of women in their gowns gathered about the wells and walking away with as many as five pots of water, balancing one on top of the other on their heads (the pots are graded in size so one will fit on the top of the one below it); we saw cotton growing and sugar cane and bamboo; we saw cloth hanging outside of little huts, hanging on trees to dry, for 't had just been dyed the most gorgeous shades of purple, orange, yellow, burnt yellow—but the purple especially was rich and deep and soft to look at; we saw little caravans of gypsy-like people moving along in a cloud of dust created by their 20 goats and 10 cows and umpteens dogs.

"Where are all these people moving to?" I asked our driver. The answer seems to be "just moving." They have their herds and the clothes on their back and they move, living now here, now there, sleeping on the ground.

We saw religious ceremonies which seemed like festivals or bazaars with hundreds of people lining the streets selling nuts or cooked meats or greasy sweets before the Holy Man would repair to his tent and conduct a ceremony of some kind. A ceremony of any kind would be a better way of describing it, for Hinduism is broad enough to include Christianity or the worship of a poisonous snake.

MOVEMENT

We saw an English train with an English shrill whistle; we waited patiently while bullocks were persuaded by their drivers to pull their huge-wheeled carts to one side; we tooted our horn endlessly at men, women and children trudging along the road, who preferred the centre of the road not in any seeming resentment of our presence but just because they liked it there and saw no reason why they should hustle off it; sometimes the car would come to a near-dead stop and have to nudge a walker over.

We went through dusty land useless for anything, through dusty land being painfully urged to grow a crop of one kind or another; through better land that has responded to irrigation. We drove through forest groves where the animals were thick; through villages where the people were thicker; we saw fakirs in their loin cloths and long matted hair; we saw always the hot bright sun overhead, and, as we stopped occasionally to see a temple or a tomb, we'd raid a long thermos of cold water and a box of dry biscuits and stagger at the hardship, labor, discomfort, squalor, poverty, heat, dust, endless dust over skins and food and homes and animals, dust in the throat, dust sifted into pockets and in your hair and making your eyes smart, dust on the land that made it seem parched and barren.

And then we got to Agra. And to the Taj Mahal. It is the most beautiful building I have ever seen. So much so, that I might say it is the only beautiful building I have ever seen, for I have hunted my memories for something to compare with it and there is nothing. It is beautiful; and when you see it at night in the moonlight you speak in whispers.

World War I Veterans Predominate In Remembrance Day Service At Cenotaph

Two old soldiers who took part in Remembrance Day observance Saturday at Cenotaph were Maj. W. Garrard, left, of 2724 Seaview Road, and Capt. Morris Jacob, M.C. and Bar.

Former member of Royal Flying Corps was Reg Harper, M.M., who lives at Glyn, Saanich. With him is C. Norman, M.C., 1675 Oak Bay Avenue, who fought with the Cheshire Regiment in World War I.

Among the hundreds of veterans attending ceremony were John Cargill, left, and Ross Clark, one of the few veterans of World War II to take part in observance here.

Scottish Mark Remembrance Day

Officers, men and cadets of the Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's), formed up around the Memorial Cross on Pioneer Square Saturday at noon to honor the men who had died wearing their uniform. As the bells of Christ Church Cathedral finished marking the hour, Rev. J. L. W. McLean opened the service with prayer, while three pipers stood by. Laying wreaths at the foot of the cross were Lt.-Col. W. J. Mosedale, commanding officer of the regiment; Lt.-Col. F. Brooke Stephenson, president of the Canadian Scottish Regiment.

THE HOME GARDEN

Government Experts' Advice Available

By JACK G. BEASTALL

To complain about taxation is the prerogative of any Canadian citizen, and it is a subject which receives frequent airing.

The general belief seems to be that greater returns should be forthcoming, but many fail to avail themselves of returns which are rightfully theirs and procurable for the asking.

Scores of home gardeners are now seeking advice on fruit trees. It is difficult for the beginners to select from the dozens of varieties listed in the catalogues, especially when space allows for only two or three trees.

So, the gardener turns to neighbors and friends for advice, which is sometimes as confusing as the catalogue, and in final desperation purchases any tree offered for sale, discovering in later years that it is unsuited to either soil or district.

Through taxation the federal and provincial governments maintain departments whose jobs consist in part of collecting authentic agricultural and horticultural information, and making this available to the taxpayer in the form of reports and bulletins.

BULLETINS AVAILABLE

This material may be obtained from the Department of agriculture in the Parliament Buildings at Victoria, the Dominion Experimental Station at Saanichton, and the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

These sources have lists of all their publications which are currently in print, and no gardener need be without information on any subject in which he is interested. My own file contained 618 bulletins at the last count, and these have been secured from England, United States, as well as Canada.

Why not start a gardening library yourself? Long winter evenings are near during which many an interesting and profitable hour may be spent in reading.

Those wishing advice on fruit trees could well start their library with provincial bulletin H.C. 64, "Varieties of Fruit trees recommended for planting in B.C." and the Saanichton report, 1937-1946.

'Octopus Defence' Tried Out By North Koreans

By HAL BOYLE

WITH THE U.S. 8th ARMY IN KOREA (AP)—The United Nations is running up against world Communism in the first real test of the Red military theory of "octopus defence."

The U.N. has defeated the North Korean foe in the field. But, behind the fresh, well-armed Chinese, the shattered North Koreans are trying desperately to rebuild a new army.

That is the belief of some veteran American intelligence officers. It is a known fact that, although U.N. forces stripped the North Korean army of its muscle, the brain remained intact.

A recent summary by Gen. MacArthur estimated the North Koreans have only 60,000 soldiers left of an army of about 400,000. But among the captured prisoners there was no enemy general, not even a full colonel.

Here is what American intelligence officers believe happened as the North Korean army started to crack in mid-September:

The enemy general staff withdrew north by plan beyond the 38th Parallel. It issued orders to high field officers to defend as long as possible, then pull back.

The withdrawing forces were told to reassemble at Sinuiju, on the northwest end of the Korea-Manchuria border, and at Kanggye, a town only a short distance south of the border in the north-central part of the peninsula.

The North Korean general staff apparently is doing its best now to reorganize as large a fighting force as it can. It is an attempt to regain "face," also part of a Russian-inspired program never to admit final defeat.

Stragglers from scenes of defeat in the south are being reassembled after they walk back, ragged and sometimes without weapons, across the hills. The remaining youth of North Korea are being forced into service. New units are under training on both sides of the border.

Lantigen 'B'

DISSOLVED ORAL VACCINE

The introduction of Lantigen "B" dissolved oral vaccine to this country has brought a new approach to the treatment of Catarrh and Bronchitis. Following a number of years' experience in Australia and the United Kingdom, Lantigen "B" is now becoming widely acknowledged in Canada for its treatment of these two distressing ailments. In its own persistent and thorough way Lantigen "B" provides a safe and reliable method of treating Catarrh and Bronchitis. Lantigen, being a vaccine, not only treats the disorder but stimulates resistance to the causative germs. Lantigen "B" costs $6.00 per bottle. Ask your druggist for descriptive Lantigen Booklet.

Tin Miners Don't Get Pimples

Because Cornish tin miners appeared to avoid skin blemishes, British chemists suggested the use of tin in treating Boils, Acne, Pimples.

Now convenient, tasteless tablets containing 42.5% metallic tin are available under the brand name "Tinoid." Rapid, satisfactory results are claimed for this inexpensive treatment.

Tinoid Tablets are sold without prescription at all drug stores, 75c.

Yes, Nickel is a wonderful help in keeping food pure. In hotels, hospitals, restaurants and ships, equipment used in handling food is generally made of "Monel" or Stainless Steel. These metals are glass-smooth, non-porous, rust-proof and sanitary. They last for years and years.

Range tops today are being made of Ni-Resist—a cast iron containing Nickel. Ni-Resist range tops and lids do not sag or warp. They last longer.

Gleaming surfaces around the soda bar are "Monel" too. They're bright, sanitary, easy to keep clean.

Forty-three years of research have uncovered hundreds of uses for Nickel in the United States and other countries. Now Nickel exports bring in millions of U.S. dollars yearly. These dollars help pay the wages of the 14,000 Nickel employees in Canada and also help pay Canadian railwaymen, lumbermen, iron and steel workers and other men and women making supplies for the Nickel mines, smelters and refineries.

VIEWS OF SPORT

By RED SMITH

NEW YORK—Wearing a scalp modishly dusted with dandruff in lieu of a silk hat, this wayfarer dropped in on the National Horse Show which, in its 67th year, still draws crowds to Madison Square Garden, thus surpassing even the Willie Pep-Sandy Saddler fist fight series for longevity.

A mild shock was experienced on arrival. Turned out the joint was full of horses but there wasn't a mutual window to be found; no more appalling example of sinful waste occurs outside of Washington. There being no odds board, advice was sought from Mr. Jimmy Johnson, who had at least as much to do with the invention of horse shows as Abner Doubleday with the origin of baseball.

"Who do you like," Mr. Johnson was asked, "in class 47, for five-gaited stallions and geldings?"

"Wing Commander," Mr. Johnson replied, "is 1-to-1,000." There may have been a touch of bias there, for it developed that Mr. Johnson had bred Wing Commander, by Anacacho Shamrock from the Dixiana stables mare, Flirtation Walk.

The Bugler Wore Beige Tights

At this point the bugle sounded for the international jumping event, called the Royal Winter Fair Trophy.

Fault and out. The horse show bugle has no loops in it. It is a straight tin horn, a yard long, such as small children are wont to blow on adjacent to hangovers on Christmas morning. It was blown by a gentleman wearing a red coat over beige tights.

"Who's the joker in pinks wearing his wife's stockings?" Mr. Johnson was asked.

"Those," Mr. Johnson said, blenching, "are boxcloth leggings. That's Honey Craven, the ringmaster."

If you are one of those who get an apprehensive shiver out of watching the high wire act in the circus or a big steeplechase field going pellmell for a fence—fascinated yet fearful of accident—there is a different sort of excitement for you in the jumping competition at the Horse Show.

The deliberate pace and the casual smoothness of horse and rider are reassuring. Where you may shrink inwardly as the steeplechase field rises to each fence, you respond to the effort of the show horse, rising spiritually with him at every barrier. You find yourself applying body-English to lift the horse across.

The horse clears the first five jumps in the course of 10 increasingly difficult barriers to a splatter of polite applause. He goes for the next fence and you are muttering, "No! He's taking the turn too close—he's over—too slow for this one, he'll never—he did! Now the big one! Oopsadaisy!"

Overabundance Of Mink

All around the ring, the reactions are similar. As the horse heads for the last tail fence, hoarse shouts issue from beneath the silk hats, treble yips rise from the puddles of mink. The only things there are more of than live horses in the Garden are deceased mink.

In class 19, four single harness horses, driven to phaetons with ladies at the reins, went show-boating around the hall.

"This is a test of manners," Mr. Johnson explained. "Above all, the horse must be well-behaved, safe for a lady. Then style counts, the general quality of the turnout. See there? When he stops, the horse must stand in a spread, forelegs and hindlegs extended. That way he's firm and steady and won't joggle the rig as the lady dismounts."

He pointed out Mrs. Louisa Long Combs, a gracious lady somewhat chinchillaed and plumed. "She used to drive with her pet skunk sitting beside her," Mr. Johnson said. "Skunk's name was Gerdien."

In the old days," Mr. Johnson said, "the judges wouldn't look at a horse with any white on him. Too flashy for a lady."

Now came class 47 and, as Mr. Johnson had predicted he would, Wing Commander "ate up the ring." The stallion's class was such as to hit smack-dab the most inept eye in the house. Cries of admiration followed him as he swept around, flowing so superbly his rider could have balanced an egg on end on his head. Wing Commander is impressively stylish, a liver chestnut with flashing white markings. He won in a walk, not to mention a canter, rack and trot.

The Dance Of The Stallions

Lights went down and Strauss waltzes rose in the hall for the nightly performance of the Spanish Riding School of Vienna.

The Rockettes should learn team work from these glorious white lippizan stallions. Cain's warehouse should have costumes to match the Napoleonic trappings of the riders.

Steads and riders flowed through the dance, stylized as a minuet.

It is called, properly, the Great School Quadrille, rippling with formalized movements—the pirouette, the piaffe, the capriole, the courbette, the croupade, manoeuvres that sound like drinks mixed with creme de cacao.

"Look at that kid," Mr. Johnson said, nodding toward one of the rigid riders. "He's just 17. Imagine picking a job like that for your life work. 40 bucks a month, and all the water you can drink."

Illinois, California Near Rose Bowl Berths

NEW YORK (AP)—Ohio State struck a sledge-hammer blow for the Big Ten championship, and Oklahoma weathered a threat to its record winning streak Saturday as the United States college football season moved into the stretch.

Southern Methodist University, ranked No. 1 in the Associated Press poll two weeks ago, suffered its second straight setback, losing to Texas A. and M., 25 to 20. The Mustangs were tumbled by Texas last Saturday and were ranked seventh last week.

The Buckeyes of Ohio State, second-ranked nationally, moved a step nearer the Big Ten title by beating Wisconsin, 19 to 14, at Columbus, O.

They can clinch the crown by whipping either Illinois next week or Michigan a week later. Illinois, a leading candidate for the Rose Bowl because of Ohio State's ineligibility, kept its hopes alive by turning back Iowa, 21 to 7.

Ohio State played in the Rose Bowl classic last New Year's Day, and because of the Big Ten's contract with the Pacific Conference, whereby the same team can only make the trip once every three years, is not eligible this season.

California virtually clinched the host role in the Rose Bowl game by smashing U.C.L.A., 35 to 0. It was the 32nd straight regular-season victory for the Golden Bears, who have lost to the Big Ten in the Rose Bowl the last two years. They are ranked sixth.

Three Games On Hoop Card

After a week of idleness, the Victoria and District Basketball League resumes activities to-night at the Victoria High School gym, with a tripleheader on the program.

The feature attraction of the card will be a senior B men's tussle between the classy Victoria College Vikings and Flecher's Men's Wear, slated to commence at 9.

Both clubs have only seen action in one game to date, the clothiers winning their start and the students winding up on the short end of the count in their game.

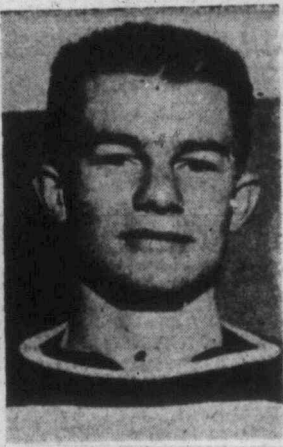

McNutt's Loggerettes, formerly the Bomberettes, will meet Hank Casillo's still-unnamed entry in an intermediate girls' tussle to open the card at 7, while an hour later, two intermediate A men's clubs, Chinese Students and the Vic High Toms, will match shots.

JOHN DOREY

DAVE FRIESEN

In Hockey Warfare At Arena Tonight

Three bang-up hockey clashes are on tap at the Memorial Arena tonight, the feature a first-place battle between Douglas Tire and Fishermen's Co-op, as the City Commercial Hockey League enters its fifth week of play. John Dorey will have his sights trained on Navy sticks in the opener at 7, when he skates between the pipes for the Brotherhood of Paper-makers. Both clubs are tied for third place, two points behind the Co-ops. The feature game is slated to begin at 8:30, and Kenny Gunter will be in strip for the green-clad Douglas Tire sextette. Only a point separates the Tiremen and Co-ops. Newcomer to the Commercial loop, Dave Friesen will guard Civil Service's citadel in the final tilt against Gladwell Meteors. Outcome will decide who stays in the league cellar.

2 Week-End Wins Give Royals Lead

The see-saw battle for the Pacific Coast Hockey League leadership between Babe Pratt's New Westminster Royals and the Portland Eagles came to a temporary halt over the week-end with the Royals out in front.

Two week-end wins, a 6 to 2 decision over Vancouver Canucks Friday and a 4 to 1 victory over Seattle, Saturday, did the trick. Portland's failure was not through losing games, however. They were only scheduled once and made it count with an easy 7 to 4 triumph at the expense of Coley Hall's hapless Canucks.

Other week-end action saw the Victoria Cougars trounce Tacoma, 4 to 1. Friday, and the Canucks tie the Rockets, 3 to 3, Saturday.

FAIRBURN NETS WINNER

Jimmy Fairburn sparked Portland's Sunday win over the Vancouverites with two goals—including the winner—and an assist. The Eagles grabbed a narrow 3 to 2 lead in the first period and each club scored once in the sandwich session.

Then Fairburn soloed in at 6:54 to mark up what proved to be the winner as Portland took a 3 to 3 lead. Blinkyke stretched and Frankie Kubasek stretched the lead to 7 to 3 before Scotty McPherson closed out the scoring with Vancouver's fourth marker.

Hermie Gruhn scored two goals within 23 seconds late in the first period Saturday to give the Royals a 2 to 0 lead over Seattle's orphan Ironmen. Denny Huddleston and Ken Ulyot made it four to zero in the second period before Fred Weaver saved the Sound City crew from a whitewashing.

HEBENTON OUT

Meanwhile, Dame Fortune struck a cruel blow at the Cougars. Poplar Andy Heberton, right-winger of the Reg Abbott-Bob Frampton-Heberton line, underwent an appendectomy operation Saturday, and will be confined for another week.

General manager Fred Hutchinson announced it would be three weeks at least before he could skate again.

Newcomer Geoff Burman will see his first action with the Cougars Tuesday night when they tackle Vancouver at the mainland city.

Goggin Takes Savannah Open

SAVANNAH, Ga. (UP)—Comeback Willie Goggin of White Plains, N.Y., shot his second straight three-under-par 69 yesterday to win the Savannah Open golf tournament with a 280.

Slow to start in the tournament, Goggin climbed into fourth place by the start of the last round, then won the tournament by two strokes over Tommie Bolt of Durham, N.C., the leader after three rounds. Bolt shot a 73 yesterday.

Jim Ferrier of San Francisco finished third with a 283 after a last-round 73. Milton Marusic, the surprise early leader from Albany, N.Y., soared to a 76 for a 285 and fourth. Felice Torza of St. Charles, Ill., and Chuck Klein of San Antonio, Tex., tied for fifth with 286.

Wings, Hawks Keep Pace With Toronto

Canadiens Slip; Rangers, Bruins Beaten Again

On the basis of team performances to date, Detroit Red Wings and Chicago Black Hawks loom as the only clubs capable of overhauling Toronto Maple Leafs in the race for the National Hockey League title.

The Hawks and Wings were the only teams to win twice in a heavy week-end schedule, thus staying within striking distance of the pace-setting Leafs. They also are the only teams that have beaten Toronto this season.

Montreal Canadiens, who started the season fast but now have gone eight games without a win, salvaged only one point in two games. They're fast skidding to the level of the hapless New York Rangers and Boston Bruins.

The Leafs appeared far from invincible at home Saturday night as the Red Wings snapped their unbeaten streak at 11 games, 3 to 1. Toronto hadn't lost since dropping their season opener at home to Chicago, 2 to 1, back in early October.

But the Leafs recovered quickly in Boston Sunday, rolling up the highest score of the season while blanking the Bruins 7 to 0. It was goalie Turk Broda's fourth shutout in the 11 games he has played.

On Sunday, the Wings stretched their string of unbeaten games on home ice to eight by whitewashing Canadiens 4 to 0.

HAWS FLYING

Meanwhile, Chicago who had whipped the Bruins 4 to 2 in Boston Saturday, traveled to New York and stretched their string of undefeated games to six by whipping Rangers 4 to 1. Saturday night's other game saw Rangers and Canadiens battle to a 1 tie in Montreal.

At Detroit, 12,991 fans saw young Terry Sawchuk record his second shutout of the season after missing by three minutes in Toronto Saturday.

The action was rugged with 13 penalties being called while defencemen Glenn Harmon of Canadiens and Jim McFadden game out of it patched up. Harmon had 11 stitches taken for a cut over his left eye. McFadden needed three to close a cut chin.

Boston suffered the added humiliation of seeking a large group of disgruntled fans among the crowd of 8,522 walk out on them five minutes before the final bell.

Veteran Harry Watson and rookie Danny Lewicki each recorded two goals as the Bruins absorbed their fourth whitewashing of the season, 0 to 4. Sid Smith and Max Bentley completed the rout.

Western Grid Final Disgraceful Display

By JIM COLEMAN

WINNIPEG—In an alleged football game which was strongly reminiscent of a Pier Six riot, the Winnipeg Blue Bombers whipped the Edmonton Eskimos, 22 to 12, Saturday afternoon. The deciding game for the western Canada championship will be played here Monday afternoon and, seriously, your eastern scout will fall right out of the press box, in surprise, if Esks rebound strong enough to win.

At the risk of offending this hospitable section of the country we would suggest this second game was a disgraceful display which should have been referred by Arthur Donovan and Ruby Goldstein.

We'll never understand why the boys bothered to take a ball onto the field. The ball was employed only as a kind of mechanical rabbit which was chased by numerous lusty young pugilists who dissipated their youth recklessly.

The players were provided with absolutely no protection by the officials who were timid and indecisive. Not once during the afternoon did the officials signal to indicate the nature of the penalties which they were imposing. They ignored this simple but important practice despite the fact that referee Howie Milne was the most effective ball carrier on the field.

JACOBS STARS

In the few minutes when the teams resorted to football, Winnipeg had much the best of things. Their quarterback, Indian Jack Jacobs was having one of his good afternoons and engineered the Bombers' attack with skill and ingenuity. The Edmonton had only the passing and running of Lindy Berry.

The Edmonton ground attack was stalled completely by the enormous Winnipeg linemen who played with destructive science. Edmonton never really was in the ball game until the final stages when Berry and Bill Stukus were heaving the ball desperately and their receivers fielding in the well-nigh miraculous manner of Charlie Gehring.

OFFICIALS TO BLAME

The blame of Saturday's sorry exhibition must rest squarely on the shoulders of the field officials who appeared to be suffering from the delusion that the game was being played under the Marquis of Queensberry rules, rather than the regulations of the Canadian Rugby Union.

We wouldn't dare to guess the identity of the player who was responsible for the first punch. In any event, when it became obvious that the officials were prepared to ignore the bolo-punch and the side blow to the glibets, the fist-throwing became general.

For some strange reason, the Winnipeg continued to show a lack of scoring-punch inside the 15-yard line—they hit most effectively from long range. Obviously, they lack a power-back although they have a running backfield which operates mag-sufficiently behind brutal block-

ing. The Bombers are the only current Canadian team, which shows any real facility with the old end-run which once was the hall mark of Canadian rugby football.

BOMBERS CINCH TO WIN

We've seen four football teams in the past two weeks—the Winnipeg and Edmonton teams that played in Edmonton a week ago and the Winnipeg and Edmonton teams which played in Winnipeg this Saturday. In view of the fact the deciding game will be played here, too, we can't believe that Winnipeg will be beaten, playing in Winnipeg's Osborne Stadium where the spectators breathed on the necks of the participants.

It was as cold as an Eskimo's toe—if you remember the old schoolboy expression. Sections of the field were covered by snow, other spots were icy and still other sectors were greasy. Under the circumstances, the spectators wondered why an old Argo such as Annie Stukus didn't employ the old Argo trick of equipping his backs with basketball shoes. Several of the Winnipeg scampers wear such footwear with profitable results.

United Stalled By Scots; City Beaten

Victoria United's bid to become a playoff threat in the Pacific Coast Soccer League came a cropper at the hands of St. Andrews here Saturday afternoon when the Scots, taking advantage of one of the few scoring opportunities presented, squeaked out a 1 to 0 victory before over 1,000 half-frozen customers.

Vic High Takes Double Defeat From Kitsilano

Vancouver Kitsilano High School won two close games from Victoria High School Friday, the soccer game by a 1 to 0 score and the basketball game by 56 to 50.

In the afternoon soccer game Victoria High held the play for most of the game but could not beat the Kits' remarkable goalie, Bob MacCulloch, who saved his team from a shellacking.

In seven games MacCulloch has not been scored upon; but until this game he had hardly had a chance to show his worth.

Jim Oliver scored the lone goal of the game, a beautiful shot from a difficult angle, in the first half.

SAMPSON WINNER

Victoria's lone victory of the day came at half-time in the soccer game when they defeated Oak Bay High in a three and a half-mile cross-country run. Hedley Sampson was first and Peter Kirchner second.

BASKETBALL CLOSE ALSO

The Totem cagers were minus the services of their star guard, Lorne Oakley, who is out for two months with a sprained ankle, but they still managed to keep on even terms with Kits.

The locals rang up an early 8 to 1 lead before Kitsilano rallied to take a 30 to 29 lead at the half.

In the second half Kits rang up six straight points to keep the lead for the rest of the game. Totems threatened most of the time, however, making the score 47 to 46 with about five minutes left to play. Then Zarry and Shields had to leave the game (on personals) and the Totems lost their punch.

Teams and scores follow:

V.H.S. Totems—Zarry 16, Forbes 13, Woollett 10, Shields 5, Jarhaus 2, Whan 2, Abbott 2, Burton, Pynn, Donahue, Clarke. Kitsilano—Munro 21, Smith 11, B. Hardy 8, Pulos 9, Stock 5, C. Hardy 1, Keeley 1, Gaisford, Mahon, Tait.

Stamps Climb With Victory Over Quakers

CALGARY (CP)—Backed by the veteran Russ Dertell's solid netminding performance, Calgary Stampede's gamely battled from behind Saturday night to hammer out a narrow 4 to 3 victory over Saskatoon Quakers.

Stampede, trailing over most of the route, thrilled the capacity crowd of 5,200 with a brilliant third-period offensive which saw them take the lead with three well-executed goals and then hang on to the finish against a desperate Saskatoon aggregation.

The win boosted the Calgary club into a second-place tie with Quakers in the Western Canada Senior Hockey League race.

Veteran Dunc Grant, showing signs of returning to the form that made him one of the most feared forwards in the Western Senior League in the past several seasons, led the Calgary attack with two goals and an assist. Norm Larson, recruit from Hershey Bears of the American Hockey League, scored once and hard-working Archie Scott added the other Calgary singleton.

Sharp-shooting Alex Kuzma starred for Quakers with two goals and Reg Bentley notched the other.

Willie Shoemaker Injured; Jockey Mark Now At 326

AGUA CALIENTE, Mex. (AP)—An injury Sunday interrupted jockey Willie Shoemaker's record-breaking pace for America's 1950 jockey championship.

Shoemaker's foot was caught against the starting gate when Mosaic, his eighth mount of the day, reared over.

Attendees at the track hospital said 19 bones appeared to be broken in the badly bruised foot. Shoemaker was taken to San Diego for X-ray examination.

North Shore	W	L	D	GP	GA	Pts.
New Westminster	4	1	1	6	15	9
St. Andrews	3	1	2	6	10	8
Vancouver City	2	1	3	6	14	7
VICTORIA UNITED	1	4	1	6	19	3

The United attack faltered on the doorstep through most of the game with the forward line musing up many a chance to score. St. Andrews, on the other hand, only had three decent tries on the United net and made good on one.

That was late in the second half when Don Matheson, the twinkle-toed halfback, fired a low curving shot into the corner of the twine that goalkeeper Joe Travis got his fingers on but failed to hold.

Travis earlier had tipped a hard drive from Wally Novak against the post and had saved on a penalty try by George Steele.

JONES BRILLIANT

The outstanding player on the field was Jackie Jones, St. Andrews' centre-half, who time and time again broke up United thrusts. Matheson was the pick of the others.

For United the backs played well and the game's only goal came as a result of mix-up between two United defenders allowing Novak to make the play that eventually set the stage for Matheson's drive.

CHANGES THREATENED

Coach George Kulai refused to accept the fact that United had a territorial edge on the play as solace in defeat. "Some changes will have to be made," he said. "It's all well and good to out-play the other fellow, but if we can't score goals we're never going to win many games."

Kulai's statement is borne out in the league's statistics which show United in the cellar with only one victory in seven starts and with only a total of 10 goals in those games. The defeat also put United in a bad position in regard to securing one of the four play-off berths.

They are now three points behind Vancouver City, fourth-place club, and four points out of second place, currently shared by New Westminster and St. Andrews.

City lost a chance to take over the league lead and at the same time suffered their first defeat of the season on the mainland Saturday by absorbing a 5 to 0 lacing by the now league-leading North Shore Reds.

NO BIRTHDAY PRESENT

It was also a tough loss for manager Tommy Restell who this week had been given a special vote of confidence by the players. You see, it was Tommy's birthday.

United's next start will be at home on Saturday against City, and with each succeeding game being of added importance in the play-off race, United will need a victory to stay in contention.

Thompson Dominates Shuttle Exhibition

Twenty-six-year-old Darryl Thompson of Vancouver was the outstanding figure in the exhibition badminton matches at the Victoria Lawn Tennis and Badminton Club Saturday night.

Competing in three of the four events, Thompson scored his greatest success in the men's singles when he defeated eight-time Canadian champion Dick Birch, 17-14 and 15-12. He then paired with Ken Meredith to take the men's double feature from Birch and Bert Jones 18-5, 13-15, 15-12.

Later he partnered Mrs. Jean Bardsley in the mixed doubles and the result was a 15-6, 15-8 triumph over Birch and Miss Lois Reid. In a women's singles match Miss Reid defeated Mrs. Bardsley, 11-8.

Badminton Wins Lewis-Feesey Cup

Eric Badminton became the holder of the Lewis Feesey Cup after defeating Stan Evans in a closely-contested match by the score of 1 up, Sunday.

W. Dunaway defeated J. A. Betts, 1 up. SECOND FLIGHT: J. L. Loney defeated G. H. Bevan, 3 and 2. THIRD FLIGHT: J. Barlow defeated J. Walter, 4 and 2. FOURTH FLIGHT: G. C. Briscoe defeated A. Elworthy, 5 and 4.

Army, Navy and Air Force Vets defeated Mac's-Chemos, 5 to 0, Saturday in a third division Juvenile Soccer League match. Norm Curran scored three goals for the winners with Bill Abbott and Don McIntosh scoring singletons.

Tackle Western Canada Champs Friday

Laurie Wallace and Gordie Hartley, co-coaches of the Victoria High School Totems, will match their proteges with the B.C. High School Basketball Tournament and Western Canadian High School hoop winners, Duke of Connaught High School, here Friday night in the first game of a home-and-home exhibition series. The Totems will play in New Westminster, home of the Connaughts, Nov. 24. On Friday, the Totems suffered a close 56 to 50 setback at the hands of Vancouver's Kitsilano High School. Left to right, front row: Lorne Oakley, Gary Pynn, Don Donahue, Ted Whan and Gerry Burton; back row: Norm Forbes, Bob Abbott, George Wollett, Pete Zarry, Jim Jahraus and Jack Shields.

Richards Sets Jockey Mark; Equals Another

LINGFIELD, Surrey, Eng. (Reuters)—Gordon Richards rode his 200th winner of the season Saturday and wrote another record into Britain's turf annals. His feat equaled that of the immortal Fred Archer in riding 200 winners in each of five consecutive seasons.

Gordon's victory aboard J. V. Rank's Celebrate in the Southern Counties Handicap over seven furlongs here was his 4,166th in a career that has no parallel in racing history.

It was the 10th occasion the beetle-browed little man of iron has scored the "double century" in 29 years in the saddle. This season, ending within two weeks, will be his 23rd championship year in the last 26.

Richards' closest rival for the greatest number of victories ever recorded is Johnny Longden, the Taber, Alta., veteran who has passed the 3,500 mark in 24 seasons. But Longden can ride nearly all year round on American tracks while Richards' season is restricted from March to November.

Gordon, 46, who rides at 114 pounds without wasting, has been cracking records for so many years that the fans lose track.

He passed Archer's 1896 record of 2,748 winners in 1943, and Belgian Sam Heapy's 1938 mark of 3,000 in 1947. He broke another Archer mark when he ran up 259 winners in 1933 and shattered it again with 269 in 1947.

He has won more than $2,500,000 in stake money for owners—he generally gets about 10 per cent in "presents"—and his retaining fees run into the thousands.

Vets of France notched their fifth straight decision in the Lower Island Junior Football League Sunday with a 3 to 2 win over Duncan's Native Sons at the up-island centre.

Bert Ingram, Bob Rowe and Alan Blair were the Vets' goal-getters. Wilson scored one of Duncan's goals and the other was deflected in by a Victoria fullback.

Goblin Gridders Upset Whitneys

The local Junior Canadian Football League wound up its regular season with two games over the week-end.

On Saturday the Royal Roads contingent climaxed its winning ways by edging a stubborn Vampire team 17 to 5, while on Sunday Oak Bay Gobblers whipped Whitneys 28 to 17.

Although the Vamps were on the losing end all the way, they gained the plaudits of the crowd by being the first team to score a major against the Cadets. Wayne Henderson turned the trick in the second quarter as he went 15 yards behind some effective blocking by his mates. Unscored the second Whitney counter shortly before the half. The second half was all Oak Bay as they ran the Blue Devils right into the ground. An 85-yard gallop by Ken Higgs gave Gobblers their first major, and touchdowns by McLaren and White put them ahead 17 to 12.

Whitneys gained a short-lived tie as Ballard scored his second touch, again on a fumble. However, Gobblers roared ahead on a rouse by Maizes and touchdowns by Ramsay and Higgs.

Next week-end will see the semifinals of the post-season playoffs, with all four clubs tangling. The first-place Cadets will again meet the third-place Vampires and second-place Whitneys will play host to the cellar-dwelling Gobblers.

ONE MINUTE NEWS ABOUT JOHNS-MANVILLE

BATTLE OF AGE WON FOR HOMES

Since time began, fire, weather and decay have conspired to destroy the homes men have built. But these three universal destroyers have little effect on exterior walls built of Johns-Manville Cedargrain Siding Shingles.

For J-M Cedargrains are made of two minerals that can neither burn nor rot, asbestos and cement. Cedargrains do not require painting, as their color is provided by imbedded granules. Applied over old walls, J-M Cedargrains give weather-beaten homes brand new beauty and protection; in new construction, they lend themselves to all types of architecture.

Cedargrains are available in five beautiful colors: Green-tone, Brownstone, Red-tone, Graytone and Dover White. These colors may be used singly or in combination as personal tastes prefer. Before you build or remodel, write for free folder on Cedargrains to Johns-Manville, 1206 Homer Street, Vancouver, or see your J-M dealer.

Esquimalt To Meet Wests

Score Easy Victories In McGavin Cup Semis

Esquimalt and Wests will provide the opposition in next Sunday's McGavin Cup soccer final.

Both clubs took advantage of the scoring opportunities in the semifinal round yesterday to eliminate Oak Bay and Britannia Legion.

The Esquimalt eleven thumped the Bays, 4 to 1, at Athletic Park, and the greenshirts whitewashed the Vets to the tune of 4 to 0 at Lower Beacon Hill.

The final is billed at Athletic Park Sunday at 2.

The Esquimalt-Oak Bay clash was even so far as the territorial play went, but the luckless Bays showed a glaring weakness when they entered the dockyarders' goal area.

Bill Walker opened the scoring after 10 minutes to give winners a 1 to 0 lead and veteran Gordie Hayward boosted the margin five minutes later.

The redshirts remained two goals up until five minutes before the interval when right-half Doug Hawkes lifted a high lob from well out that found its way into the upper corner of the net, making it 3 to 0.

Right-half Ralph Baker sliced the lead to two goals again three minutes before the whistle when he dribbled up the field and drove successfully down.

GOALIES SHINE

Both goalies played smart soccer in the second half and as a result, only one more goal was scored. After 15 minutes, Gordie Duncan completed the scoring for Esquimalt.

Bobby Allen gave the Wests a one-goal lead in the first half of the Wests-Britannia Legion fixture at Beacon Hill Park. First session was fairly even and winners could capitalize on only the one scoring opportunity.

Chick Newman, Wests' inside left, was the big man in the second half. He made it 2 to 0 at the 20-minute mark and added two more late in the game to complete his hat-trick and give the greenshirts a four-goal decision.

"555... Roger"

The R.C.A.F. has a code language all its own—brief, concise for quick, clear understanding.

"Vampire 555...Clear to Land" (Control to pilot) "555...Roger" (Pilot to control tower)

In those few words, a clear-eyed young Canadian pilot in a stream-lined Canadian jet knows that the field is clear—that it is time for him to "come in"—and confirms instructions. Perhaps YOU, as another alert young Canadian want to "come in" too.

The R.C.A.F. has immediate need of young men to train as

PILOTS • RADIO OFFICERS • NAVIGATION OFFICERS

If you are between the ages of 18 and 24, physically fit and can meet the educational requirements, there is an immediate opening that will give you valuable training in the modern field of aviation, and an opportunity to serve your country in a vital arm of its defence.

City 'Saucer' Of Newest Design

The "flying saucer" will come into its own one day as the solution to traffic congestion in most U.S. cities, thinks designer George F. Miller of Chicago. Above is Miller's conception of a saucer-shaped, 100-passenger air bus that would carry city commuters at 90 to 175 miles an hour.

Great Run Of Sardines Gluts Portugal Market

LISBON (Reuter)—Sardines, after an absence of two and a half years, are back off the Portuguese coast in such numbers that the market is glutted.

The canning industry and domestic consumers are unable to keep pace with supplies; the surplus is being sold for manure. Some days, so many ships arrive in port laden with sardines that fishermen are unable to sell them, even for fertilizer. The people do not want to take them away even free of charge. Sardines are sold in the local "lota" (fish market) by the fisherman as soon as they have landed their catch. Priority of purchase goes to the canning factories. When these have taken all they want, the remainder of the catch is loaded on trucks to be taken to towns and villages throughout the country.

On days when the surplus is large, the trucks race each other along the roads in order to arrive first at the market places. The return of the sardines to Portugal waters has caused widespread satisfaction in Portugal, for sardines are one of the most important items in the country's economy.

Group Of Former Nazis Coming More Into Open

Aim Germany Independent Of East, West; Balance Between European Powers

By HEINZ WEISSENBERGER

HAMBURG (Reuter)—Germany's Bruderschaft, "Brotherhood of Former Army Officers and Nazi Leaders," is coming more into the open as the western occupation powers relax their grip on the country.

It has sent some of its young men to north German meetings to explain their aims.

They want "a Germany independent of East and West, a third force in strife-torn Europe, a balance between the powers and a crystallization point for a European renaissance."

This appears to be a long-term aim. In the meantime, members oppose a setting-up of German military forces under any Western supreme command. They want a pure-bred German army within European defence forces and with German representation in a European general staff.

By digging deeply, one can discover a good deal about the hitherto secret Bruderschaft now that it has reached the public-meeting stage.

IN PRISON CAMP

Its leadership as a caste-conscious body of Hitler's former staff officers and high-ranking members of the dreaded S.S. (Elite Corps) Blackshirts. It was born on the day of Germany's defeat, May 8, 1945, in a prisoner-of-war camp.

Under the shock of defeat, their first thought was to make use of their esprit de corps and their battlefield comradeship as a stabilizing factor in Germany's internal struggles.

Any rallying of former soldiers was prohibited by the Allies. So the Bruderschaft began to build clandestinely. Soon it spread to labor units recruited in the British zone of occupation. The heads of these units, nearly all former officers, joined with few exceptions.

The first members slowly carried their organization into the rest of Germany, including the Soviet zone.

The Bruderschaft is working to create a "true elite," destined to rule by virtue of "their personality and ability." Their program is to "preserve the tradition of the German Fuehrer (leader) principle until we can take the fate of our nation into its ultimate goal is the "union of our own hands again."

of European nations between the Atlantic and the Ural Mountains, of which Germany—the reich of all Germans within its ethnographical and historic boundaries—is to be an organic part."

WOMAN M.P. FLAYS BATHS FOR MEN ONLY

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE, Eng. (AP)—Irene Ward, Conservative Member of Parliament, is all steamed up over the bath situation in some hotels run by the British railways.

Miss Ward told the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs that she went into the government-run Great Northern Hotel at London's King's Cross railway station and was told that baths were for men only.

Miffed but determined, Miss Ward marched to one of the vacant bathrooms and proceeded to soak to her heart's content.

WESTERN CANADA DEMANDING DIPLOMAT COAL-COSTS LESS!

Ultra-Modern Equipment cuts costs — You save

New, modern equipment at the Diplomat Mine, cuts down operating costs. Lower costs mean a lower price per ton of coal mined. You get the saving on every ton of Diplomat you buy.

Largest Dragline in Alberta

The Diplomat seam is mined from the surface. Rocks and dirt are scooped up by a huge power shovel (photograph above) called a dragline, laying the seam bare. The boom on this dragline, the largest and most modern in Alberta, is 140 feet long. Up-to-date equipment like this means more coal mined faster. It means money saved — for us and for you.

Modern, All-Steel Tipples

The tipple is the preparation plant that cleans, sizes and loads coal for shipment. The tipple at the Diplomat Mine is all-steel, completely modern, equipped with large-type multiple-stage crushers and screening devices that size and clean coal quickly and accurately. The tipple is equipped with new-type special box-car loaders, designed to load Diplomat Coal gently and keep breakage at a minimum.

Special equipment at the Diplomat Mine means faster, more economical mining. That's why Diplomat Coal, "first choice in coals," sells for less!

ALL COAL NO SHALE NO SLATE

Diplomat is all coal. The Diplomat seam is an exceptionally good one. There is no apparent parting. In other words, the seam is solid coal — no shale or slate. This means lower cleaning costs for us and better burning for you. And when you order Diplomat from your neighborhood fuel dealer it means you're getting 100% coal — at less cost per ton.

Called "First Choice in Coals" burns long and evenly - Costs less

Diplomat, the new Sinclair Mines coal from Alberta, is sweeping the West. More and more people are asking for it every day. A hard, blocky, shiny domestic coal, Diplomat has the price advantage. It costs you less, far less, per ton. You see, special equipment reduces mining costs and you get the saving.

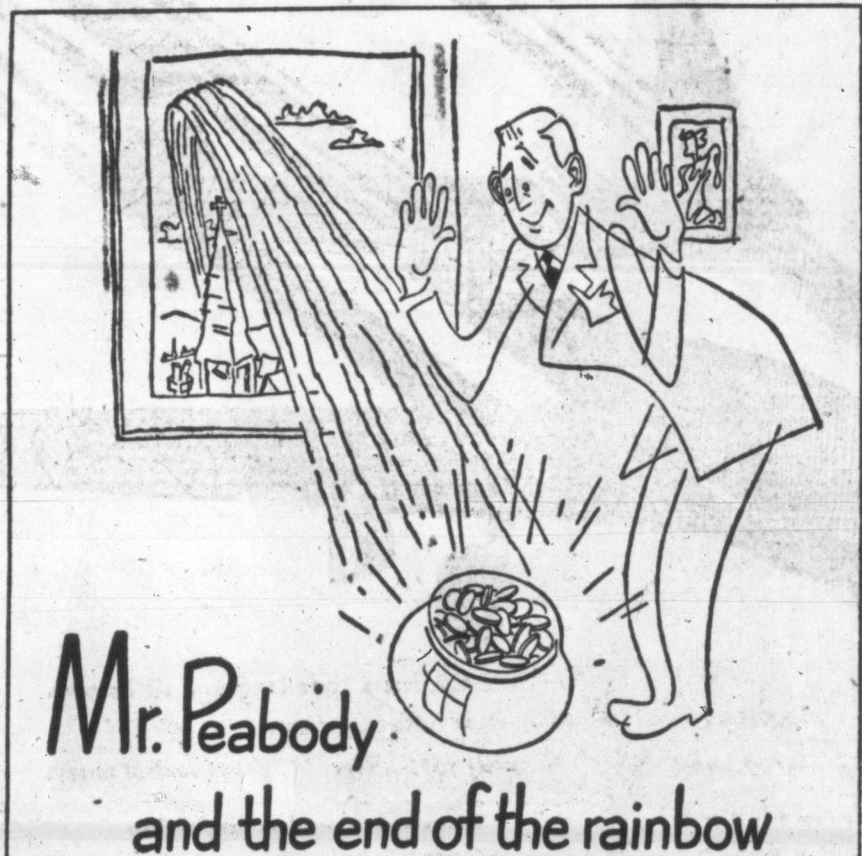

Sinclair Mines Diplomat is a superior domestic coal. Precision sized, it burns long and evenly. It burns hot. It leaves little ash. And it's suitable for stove or furnace. See for yourself. Order Diplomat from your neighborhood fuel dealer today!

"It's all right, dear — just going to put some more Diplomat on the fire." Funny the way some people treat Diplomat Coal. It gives so much for so little they feel they owe it special honours. Diplomat gives lots of heat, little ash — yet it costs less. It's a top-notch Alberta coal, mined all coal, no slate, no shale — you get the saving. Your neighborhood fuel dealer has Diplomat. Call him.

DIPLOMAT AVAILABLE IN ALL SIZES

New Diplomat Coal is readily available in all sizes. Order it in whatever size you prefer for your own individual heating unit. There's block, egg, nut and special stoker — whatever you need. You'll find each is priced remarkably low per ton — because Diplomat costs less, far less, per ton. And you can order Diplomat Coal from your own neighborhood fuel dealer. He has Diplomat Coal now. Burn Diplomat this winter. First choice in coals — it costs less, far less, per ton!

• You could have knocked Mr. Peabody over with a feather.

For there, right through the window of his own room, came a rainbow. And at the end of it was a huge pot of gold!

As he approached it to see if it was real, he heard the sound of bells. "The whole town has heard of this!" thought Mr. Peabody. "That's why the bells are ringing." And the sound of the bells grew louder... louder... LOUDER...

Mr. Peabody awoke with a start. The alarm clock beside his bed was ringing... ringing... RINGING. Shutting it off, he sighed sadly, got up and dressed.

At the breakfast table Mr. Peabody read his newspaper. In it a speaker was reported to have said that old-age benefits should provide everybody with enough to retire on.

"Humph!" snorted Mr. Peabody to himself. "More rainbows! I like the idea of additional help for older people. But to build the kind of comfortable old-age income I want, I fully expect to need all my life insurance — and maybe more. It gives my family protection now. And it covers my own special needs in a way no mass programme could possibly do."

Arriving at the office, Mr. Peabody, like millions of other Canadians, began another day of earning and saving for his future security with life insurance.

"Even without pots of gold, it's a pretty good world," he said to himself. And as he worked, he began to whistle softly.

Hamilton Boy Rated One Of Canada's Best Shots

At 17, Bob Wingfield Takes Place Among Leading Riflemen; Tried Skill At Bisley

HAMILTON, Ont. (BUP)—A 17-year-old boy who never handled a gun until two years ago was rated today as one of the best marksmen in Canada's history.

His friends said Bob Wingfield "just doesn't miss." The young Hamilton lad was yards range, earned him two considered so good that this year he was sent to Bisley to compete at the Empire shooting tournament.

Two years ago, Wingfield had never fired a rifle. He hardly knew which end was the effective part.

But when he entered Hamilton Central Collegiate he was invited to join the school's cadet corps, known across Canada for its youthful though expert rifle teams.

Under the wing of Capt. J. R. Cornelius, one of Canada's best-known shooting instructors, young Bob rapidly developed into a first-class shot. He was a member of the Central team which in 1949 overwhelmed all opposition by winning nine out of the 10 Dominion and provincial competitions in which they participated.

This summer, Bob Wingfield and his team-mates journeyed to Bisley, England, to compete against the regular Canadian team. Although they were the youngest team at the meet, the Hamilton boys earned the distinction of being among the few outfits in the 5,000 aggregate points class.

Bob's talents for hitting the bullseye at anything up to 1,000

The world-famed London and Middlesex Artillery Company made him an honorary member, and he narrowly missed becoming a regular of the King's Own Rifles, which is composed of the Commonwealth's 100 best shots. Bob has some firm views on his abilities to shoot straight and true.

"There are three things every man must have before he can hit the mark consistently. They are a steady hand, a keen eye and, more than anything else, a cool nerve," he said.

The 'teen-ager said that being able to fasten the sights on the bullseye isn't everything. Lighting conditions and winds play an important part in a shoot.

"Even a small breeze may carry a bullet wide of the bull at 200 yards," the junior expert said. "I judge the wind by watching a small flag that usually flies at a shoot."

Bob favors a nine-pound .303 army model rifle for full-range shooting, with a .22 for short-range, backyard practice.

As yet, young Wingfield hasn't done any hunting: You can almost hear those dear breathe their thanks.

EXTRACTED TEETH DESTROYED TO FOIL AUSSIE MEDICINE MEN

SYDNEY, Australia (CP)—The mobile dental units now touring the Northern Territory are destroying all extracted teeth as a safeguard against aboriginal medicine men.

An extracted tooth here has great power in the hands of a native other than the man to whom it belongs.

A native possessing such a tooth would, it is believed, have power of life and death over the original owner—power to "point the bone."

So, every tooth is destroyed immediately after extraction. Dental plates also are being issued to natives, but only the cheapest types.

Australia Invites Settlers From Italy, Holland, Germany, As Well As Great Britain

MELBOURNE (Reuter)—Australia—a country in effect more British than Britain herself—is looking to non-English-speaking countries for immigrants despite her difficulty in assimilating them.

Unable to get all the immigrants she wants from Britain, she has turned to Holland, Italy, Germany and other countries to maintain the flow in future years. Australia wants 200,000 immigrants a year until 1960 to bring her population to a total of 10,000,000. At present the population is about 8,000,000.

Not all the problems of absorbing large numbers of foreigners have been solved. Isolation from other world centres has given Australians an insu-larity which is reflected in their way of life and attitude toward new or changing conditions.

The knowledge that the needs of newcomers aggravate the housing shortage, for example, does not increase the measure of kindness which Australians might otherwise extend to alien peoples.

New "RPM" developed by Atomic Energy

DOUBLES THE LIFE OF AUTO ENGINES!

...in the toughest test a motor gets!

New Atomic tool! By equipping test engines with piston rings treated at the Atomic Energy Commission's Oak Ridge Plant, our scientists for the first time measured wear as it happened... found out with Geiger counters exactly why motor oil failed. A New "RPM" was developed!

Cold operation tests, under rigid controls, were used to simulate stop-and-go driving conditions... the toughest kind a motor meets. New "RPM" was compared with the best of conventional motor oils. Results were amazing!

New RPM Motor Oil was shown to double the life of average automobile engines between major overhauls due to lubrication. Laboratory tests proved it. Severe road tests backed it up.

Finest engine insurance you can buy

No motor oil gives you better protection than New "RPM." Compared with conventional motor oils,* it doubles the life of average engines between major overhauls due to lubrication. It cuts in half the wear-rate of such critical engine parts as piston rings and cylinder walls. It doubles protection against gummy carbon, acid, corrosion, rust and varnish... maintains the low-oil-consumption life of the average engine twice as long. Sold with a money-back guarantee of satisfaction.

The FORMER MISS FREY

By Edwin Ruff

CHAPTER 29

On deck the following morning, Ede learned from the chatty Mrs. Winwood that Gil Summerfield had gone ashore in the small motorboat the cruiser carried.

"He went very early, bag and baggage," Mrs. Winwood said, amplifying her news. "Must have been something pretty important."

"Must have been," agreed Ede. But she wrinkled her forehead, puzzled. It wasn't like Gil to go off without saying good-bye to her.

Northcott explained blandly, at lunch.

"Mr. Summerfield received an urgent message by radio," he said. "A business matter. It's a shame it had to spoil his weekend."

All afternoon the cruiser slid through a sea calm and still, like blue glass. Reagan, who seemed to be avoiding Ede, occupied his time by fishing with Northcott and Mr. Winwood. It left Ede to the mercy of the ladies and she soon decided that Mrs. Northcott's conversation was almost as trivial as Mrs. Winwood's. As the day wore on, she grew rather bored.

At precisely 5 o'clock, however, the boredom vanished.

Mrs. Northcott had gone for a nap and Mrs. Winwood had wandered off to supervise the fishing. Ede escaped to the afterdeck with a novel borrowed from the ship's little library. She had been reading for half an hour when a shadow fell across her book.

She looked up quickly. Lewis Northcott stood there, faintly smiling.

SEES WARNING

"I've been wanting," he said, dropping into a chair next to hers, "to have a little talk with you."

Ah, Ede thought, being invited on this cruise was not entirely social. And then something—perhaps it was the little smile curling Northcott's lips—warned her of danger.

But she said, encouragingly, "Yes, Mr. Northcott?"

For a moment he gazed out over the still water. Then his eyes came back, seemed to fix on hers almost hypnotically.

"I'm the kind of man," he said abruptly, "who usually gets what he wants."

It was not said with any bragadocio. Rather, it was a cold statement of fact. And Ede knew it prefaced something. She felt herself tensing, involuntarily. But she kept her voice light.

"You sound," she said, "as if I have something that you want."

His colorless eyes stared at her even harder. "You have."

"And what might that be?" Ede asked, in the same light tone.

"An advertising agency," said Northcott quietly.

Ede started. "Perhaps I'm stupid, Mr. Northcott," she said. "But I don't seem to understand."

READY TO BUY

"I'll make it a little clearer."

Northcott smiled again. "You have an advertising agency. I want to buy it."

"Oh!" She strove to keep astonishment from showing on her face. "This is rather surprising, Mr. Northcott. But suppose it isn't for sale?"

He waved this aside. "It's been my experience, Miss Frey, that everything is for sale—if the price is right."

"But why," Ede asked, to gain time, "do you want our agency in particular? It would be easy enough for you to start an agency."

"My reasons," Northcott said, "aren't particularly pertinent to this talk. Miss Frey, I won't cloud the issue with words. You own 51 per cent of the stock of Frey & Company and you don't want to sell. But let me make my offer. I'll give you . . ."

Ede caught her breath. He had named a figure that staggered her.

"Frankly," Ede said slowly, "I am wondering why you are willing to pay more than the stock is worth."

Northcott said easily, "A buyer's prerogative, for one thing. For another, you do not wish to sell. Therefore, I have to make you a real inducement. For still a third, you can't get anything good in this world without paying high. It's best to tell you that I have—er—associates."

For just a moment Edith Frey was tempted. By pronouncing a word of one syllable, she could rid her life of a lot of annoyance and worry. She could be absolutely free to live as she liked, to go where she would, without strings or anchors. Her lips began to frame to the word. But they never uttered it. For, suddenly, she remembered old Cornelius Frey, pale and shrunken, lying in the great four-poster bed. Death on the threshold of the room, but his eyes brilliant, intelligent, implacable as ever.

"I built up my business and, dead or alive, I want it to go on. And I want it to stay in my own family."

No, she couldn't do it. She couldn't go against a wish expressed like that, and at such a time. It was too much like—like selling her father out.

NO SALE MADE

"It's a wonderful offer, Mr. Northcott," she said. "A very generous one. But"—she shook her head—"the answer is no."

He looked at her almost unbelievably. "Are you sure you're being wise, Miss Frey?" he said.

"I'm only doing what I have to do. I'd rather not discuss my reasons."

Northcott had evaded explaining his desire to buy. Why, then, should she explain her refusal to sell? "I suppose, though," she added, "that this will change things a great deal."

"It could," Northcott's eyes were dangerous now. "You refer to the account, of course. Well, I haven't made up my mind yet what I'll do about that." He arose suddenly and leaned over the rail. "I was thinking of something else, Miss Frey."

Lack Of Funds Delays Start On College-Normal Library

Construction of a library and office building at the Victoria College-Normal School has been delayed because original plans could not be carried out with funds available. It was learned today from Education Minister W. T. Straith.

He said new plans are being drawn now and he hoped an early start can be made on the building which will be situated on property to the east of the present building.

It is proposed to spend about $250,000 on the additions.

New plans call for a building containing administration of files, rooms for professors and instructors, a reading room for the normal school and another for the college, and a large library instruction room.

All books of the two education institutions will be moved to the new building.

Classrooms in the main building which have been partitioned into offices will be returned to instruction rooms, giving needed additional space for classes.

There are more than 46 miles of book shelves in the British Museum.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

By OSWALD JACOBY

"In the Metropolitan Championships, held in New York City in October, a very unusual hand was the subject of a dispute between two partners," comments a New York correspondent. "As usual, in such arguments, each of them was at fault; but each insists that the other was the chief culprit."

"The bidding was enterprising enough to satisfy the most-jaded taste, but it didn't have much effect on the real argument, which concerned the play. West opened the queen of hearts, East carefully played the three, and South played the six."

"South could not, of course, afford to win the first trick. If he did, East would win the first round of diamonds (whenever that suit was led) and clear the hearts. Then West would have the ace of diamonds as entry for the rest of the hearts."

"West studied the first trick carefully and led the jack of hearts. This brings up the first question: Should West have shifted to spades at the second trick?"

"South won with the ace of hearts and led the ten of diamonds. West played low, and East won with the king. Second question: Should West have hopped up with the ace of diamonds in order to lead spades?"

"East now laid down the ace of spades. Declarer rose to the occasion by discarding dummy's king. He was able to win the spade continuation in his own hand and force out the ace of diamonds. Now, of course, West had to lead to South and declarer easily won the rest of the tricks, making his redoubled contract."

"This brings us to the third question. Should East have led a low spade or even any club but the six instead of laying down the ace of spades? If he had done so, the contract would have been defeated."

"For example, if East leads a low spade, South's best play is to win with the ten in his own hand and lead another diamond, discarding the king of spades from dummy! West takes the ace of diamonds and leads a spade to East's ace."

"East then leads a high club to dummy (which has only clubs left) and must eventually get the fifth defensive trick in the shape of a club. No matter how South plays, he must get locked in the dummy or permit the enemy to set up a long spade."

"And now our fourth question is this: Assuming that each player was guilty of a crime at the point described, who was more guilty?"

The first three questions are easy. West should have led a spade at the second trick. It was clear that the hearts could not be brought in. Perhaps the spades could be developed."

Having failed to lead spades at the second trick, West should have taken the first diamond in order to lead spades. This was very unlikely to cost a diamond trick whereas failure to do so might cost a spade trick."

When West failed to lead spades at either of his opportunities, East should have led a low spade instead of the ace. At that point he could practically predict what was going to happen."

Now for the fourth question—as to who was more guilty. I pass. There's no glory in this hand for anybody but South. Each defender was so much to blame that he should be far too crestfallen to argue with his partner."

Representatives Of U.S. Join Tribute To War Dead

With a silence as reverent as prayer, hundreds of servicemen, war veterans and civilians paid homage Saturday at the Cenotaph to the dead of two wars.

Honors were also paid to Canada's dead heroes by Frederick L. Hinkle, United States' consul here, who laid a wreath in company with the commander of the U.S. Navy detachment taking part in the ceremony.

Sharp at 11 a.m. a gunshot signalled the start of the traditional two-minute silence. A hush fell over the throng, broken only by the distant roar of a cannon in Esquimalt, where similar tribute was paid in the same manner.

After the second cannot shot, which ended the sacred quiet, C. A. Gill gave the tribute of living veterans to their dead comrades. Pipe-Major A. Pollock and the Canadian Scottish Regiment then played the lament, "Flowers of the Forest."

Prayers were offered by Rev. A. E. Hendy, and the Royal Canadian Navy Band accompanied the singing of hymns.

After a beautiful playing of "Last Post" and "Reveille" by the band, the whole gathering sang O Canada and watched Lieutenant-Governor Clarence Wallace lay the first wreath.

Following him was Mrs. J. B. Morison, representing bereaved mothers, and provincial and municipal officers, representatives of all armed services, the clergy and veterans' organizations.

The parade and march past the saluting base on the Empress Hotel grounds, Government Street, was spirited and colorful, in contrast to the sombre proceedings at the Cenotaph.

First to go by were the veterans, older but stronger in numbers than ever, with medals of two wars jingling bravely on their chests.

As the American detachment approached the band played "Anchors Aweigh" for the Stars and Stripes carried at their head, then swung into "The British Grenadiers" as units of the Canadian Army from Work Point Barracks gave their "eyes right."

They were followed by Reserve Army units, air and sea cadets, Boy Scouts and Girl Guides.

Tribute Paid At Oak Bay

At its war memorial in Uplands Park, overlooking the Straits, Oak Bay Municipality honored its war dead with a ceremony Saturday afternoon at 3.

Naval personnel attending dipped the flag as a bugler sounded "Last Post" and "Reveille." Choirs of St. Mary's Church and Oak Bay United Church, led by J. Gerry and Lawrence King, led the singing of the hymns "Abide With Me" and "O Valiant Hearts."

Prayers were offered by Archdeacon A. E. deL. Nunns, who called for a desire for peace, and Rev. W. W. McPherson.

"We must keep forever bright the memory of the men and women whose names are engraved on the monument," Mr. McPherson said in his address.

What's Your Opinion?

By IRVING STRICKLAND AND DAVE STOCK

"Do you think husbands should help at home with the housework?" Art Songhurst, manager of Fort and Yates Shell Station, 2280 Estevan Avenue— "No, I don't think they should. It's a man's duty to spend his day earning a living for his family and it's the housewife's duty to do her own housework. If a fellow once starts doing housework it gets to be a habit, a bad habit. Some of the newly-married fellows should be told about that. I help at home, mind you. When I do the dishes it gets my hands clean."

Mrs. Mary Cave, housewife, 1021 Cook Street—"Definitely. Men work from 9 to 5 but a woman's work is never done. It doesn't hurt at all for husbands to lend a hand around the home. Housework can be pretty strenuous, especially if there's a small baby to look after. A baby can keep a woman on the go all day long just by himself. Another thing, if a husband helps his wife with the housework, it gets done that much quicker."

Wilfred "Dinty" Moore, proprietor of Moore's Food Centre, 451 Cook Street—"No, I don't think husbands should have to do housework. I think most men have enough to do during the day without having to go home at night and get down on their knees to polish floors and do things like that. I really think they should help wash the supper dishes once in a while but not too often. If they do it too often they'll get in a rut. My customers may not like me for saying this."

Miss Ricki Syrett, stenographer at Oak Bay Branch, Canadian Bank of Commerce, 2859 Austin Avenue—"No, I don't. If a man wishes to help, all right, but a wife shouldn't expect him to help all the time with everything. I think he has enough to do earning a living. He's probably pretty tired by the time he gets home. He deserves a rest. Besides, a wife should be able to get her housework finished before he gets home. It would be different, of course, for people with children."

Allen Reside, Oak Bay fireman, 2086 Penzance Road—"Why pick on me for that? You want to know should they help with housework? Well, I'd say yes. Sure if a husband is around the house and help is needed he should lend a hand as long as he's not doing anything important. A man and wife should help one another in all things. Housework can be hard work at times. I help around the house. I think the majority of fellows do. There's nothing sissy about it."

Mrs. Laura Norrington of Norrington's Bakery, 1029 Cook Street—"Well, my husband does. Marriage is a 50-50 proposition with us in all ways, housework included. We help one another—that's what married people are supposed to do. A man brings home the bacon and expects it to be cooked. That's the woman's job. But after it's cooked there are pans to wash and dishes to do. Then a husband and wife should work together. It's always easier when more people help. Many hands make work light, you know."

Two Sides Heard At Milk Hearing

Keen interest is being shown in milk board hearing here. Under consideration is proposal for increase in milk prices. This morning, arguments of dairymen in favor of higher prices were presented. This afternoon, representatives of women's group spoke against a price hike.

Youth Anxiously Awaits Word Of Flying Friends

A tall, sandy-haired youth stood in the control tower at Patricia Bay airport Sunday morning, anxiously listening to reports of private pilots returning from the search for the Piper Clipper missing since Saturday afternoon.

He was 20-year-old Alex Burton, who flew to Patricia Bay in the missing plane with three others, but remained behind to visit a cousin in the navy here. Alex, his face strained, told of the first half of the fateful flight which likely has taken the lives of his three companions.

"We all chipped in to pay for the plane—$10 an hour I think it cost. The idea was Danny (Kohaluk) would be able to get some experience and I'd be able to visit my cousin at Royal Roads," he said.

The cousin is P.O. George Hendie, on staff at Canadian Services College. He accompanied Alex to the airport Sunday, after the pair had spent most of Saturday listening to the radio for reports of the missing aircraft.

KEEN YOUTH

Young Burton, a second year arts student at U.B.C. described Kohaluk, as a keen youth, who had been in the 111 squadron of the air cadets for about four years. He was a flight sergeant and a leading member of the squadron's rifle team.

"Danny has done some hunting, so if they're down on an island somewhere, maybe they'll be O.K. They should have been able to reach an island, shouldn't they?" was his anxious question as he scanned the faces of the small group of pilots on hand.

The reply was that they hoped so, but some, having searched intensively, did not say what they were thinking—that the boy's companions were at the bottom of the Georgia Strait.

Kohaluk and Burton were close pals. They lived near each other in Vancouver, and went to air cadets together. The missing pilot was an above average young man, having won a scholarship with the air cadets to learn to fly last summer.

"He had lots of ground school, so he might have been able to get down," Alex thought aloud. He said the flight to Patricia Bay had been made at about 3,000 feet, and they had stayed underneath the clouds.

It was a little bumpy, he added.

"There was a radio in the plane, but Dan had not been checked out on it, and he didn't have any earphones," Alex said. Burton returned to Vancouver by steamer Sunday night.

DAN KOHALUK... missing pilot.

ALEX BURTON... stayed at Pat Bay.

GOLDEN RULE FITTING

Flying Club Members Rally In Search Aid

By JIM McKEACHIE

There are lots of rules in the flying game, but the one which shone above all others at Patricia Bay airport Sunday was the Golden Rule.

Each man knowing that he might be down and in trouble another day, pilots of the Victoria Flying Club rallied to search for a Piper Cub Clipper, missing on a flight from Patricia Bay to Sea Island.

The "do unto others..." rule just seemed to fit as club president Frank Copley started organizing his members Saturday night for Sunday's day-long combing of the Gulf Islands.

First plane, a Stinson piloted by Copley, took off from Patricia Bay shortly after 7 Sunday morning. Right behind, in a Fleet Canuck, was club instructor Dave Filby.

Later, they were joined by Dr. Arthur Nash, Ron Page, Claude Butler, Barney Oldfield, Joe Howroyd, Bert Ralph, and others.

EACH HAS AREA

Aubrey Westinghouse flew low over the waters of the Gulf of Georgia in his Westinghouse Airways Seabee, looking for wreckage or an oil slick.

Each pilot was allotted an area. Observers went along, and keen eyes scanned dense woods, beaches, and the scattered areas of open field on the Gulf Islands for any sign of the missing single-engine aircraft.

Some flew comparatively high (about 2,000 feet), to get a better look into the woods, and others skimmed the shorelines at 200 feet for any small bits of wreckage which might have been washed up.

In the Patricia Bay control tower, Department of Transport man, Glynn Adams, passed on a message at about 9 that a plane had been sighted Saturday afternoon over the end of the Saanich Peninsula.

Copley, who had just landed from his first two hours of searching, took off again, but nothing was seen.

Adams was the one who first became worried when the missing plane left Patricia Bay without filing a flight plan. It was drifting there at the time, and, knowing conditions were worse at Vancouver, he alerted airports in the area to check for the Clipper.

It was officially missing around 3, and first aircraft out, an R.C.A.F. Dakota from Vancouver, left there around 4.

A Victoria Flying Club member pointed out that there were Seabees which could have gone from Patricia Bay at the time, had they been requested to do so.

INTENSIVE SEARCH

Because of the clear, sunny weather Sunday, search was intensive, and as complete as it could have been.

Experienced airman think Dan Kohaluk, 19-year-old pilot of the missing plane, might have encountered carburetor icing which would cause engine failure if the carburetor heat control were not turned on immediately.

Because he only had about 31 hours flying time, Kohaluk might not have detected the trouble in time.

Another rumour was that Kohaluk got into cloud, and having had little or no instrument flying, lost control.

"We don't allow a pilot to take a four-seater plane until he has had at least 50 hours flying time," commented a flying club official.

General opinion is that the young pilot showed lack of judgment in taking off for Vancouver in drizzling rain without filing a flight plan and in view of conditions at his destination. It was simply a case of inexperience.

22 Trains Carry Force To Coast

Claxton Says Future Of U.N. Brigade Still Not Definite

The whole of Canada's special United Nations brigade may go to Korea, Defence Minister Brooke Claxton said on his arrival here today.

The brigade now is moving to Fort Lewis, Wash., in 22 special trains, and the entire force will be at the U.S. base by Nov. 23, Mr. Claxton said.

The minister arrived at Patricia Bay airport shortly before noon in an R.C.A.F. North Star aircraft direct from Calgary. He is remaining until Thursday inspecting navy and army establishments here.

He is accompanied by Air Marshal W. A. Curtis, Chief of Air Staff for Canada, and other high-ranking officers. Mr. Claxton and party were welcomed here by Attorney General Gordon S. Wismer, acting for Premier Byron Johnson who is still in hospital as a result of injuries received in a car accident at Quebec last month.

The minister was anxious to hear of Premier Johnson's condition. "I'm glad he is making good progress," said the minister.

Mr. Claxton made an air force DC-3 available for Premier and Mrs. Johnson's return here from the east following the accident in which Mr. Johnson suffered a broken hip and Mrs. Johnson severe facial lacerations.

The minister said movement of the entire Canadian brigade to Korea depended on the fighting in Korea. If the whole of the force was needed by the U.N. it will go.

If part of the brigade was not required, the men will remain at Fort Lewis to continue training. Mr. Claxton said he hoped to visit Fort Lewis and McChord Field, near Tacoma, from where the R.C.A.F.'s 426 squadron is operating an air lift to Japan, before returning to the east.

En route to the Pacific Coast, Mr. Claxton called at Sault Ste. Marie where he laid the cornerstone for a large armory, which will be one of the largest construction projects of its kind since the end of World War II.

In addition to Attorney-General Wismer, the welcoming party included Rear-Admiral W. B. Creery, flag officer for the Pacific Coast; Lt. Col. R. H. Webb, acting commander of the B.C. area, Army, Vancouver; Group Captain J. E. Easton, oficer commanding No. 12 Group, R.C.A.F., Vancouver; and Wing Commander H. M. Kennedy, O.C., Sea Island R.C.A.F. Station.

BEER, CIGARETTES, MONEY VARIED LOOT OF BURGLARS

Beer, cigarettes and money comprised the loot taken by burglars who broke into two beer parlors, an apartment house and a garage during the holiday week-end.

R.C.M.P. are investigating the series of break-ins from View Royal to Goldstream. Ralph Calladine, owner of the Goldstream Inn, said $50 in cash was stolen.

Stan Gulle, owner of the Colwood Inn, said 10 cases of beer, 11 cartons of cigarettes and some change were stolen from his premises.

Nothing was reported missing from George Edgar's Colwood Corners garage. An apartment was entered in the View Royal Apartments, but the loot taken was not revealed.

Last-Minute Effort To Avoid Shipyards Strike

The B.C. Labor Relations Board, in a final move to iron out differences between shipyard workers and Victoria shipyard operators to avert a major strike here, has scheduled meetings to-night between union officers and the employers.

The board has asked the big Boilermakers Union to send their officers to meet with company officials at 5 and has called the Joint Shipyard Workers Council, representing seven smaller unions, to confer with the operators at 8.

Both meetings will be held in the labor board's headquarters on Superior Street.

Officials of the board explain the meetings are intended to explore every avenue of settlement before a strike is called. If the meeting fails to close the wide gap between the unions' demands for a 25-cent

MAJORITY FAVOR STRIKE

A majority of Victoria shipyarders voted in favor of strike action, when they cast ballots in a supervised vote taken Thursday.

Over the week-end representatives of the Victoria Joint Shipyard Workers Council met with Vancouver union officials on the mainland. Vancouver shipyard workers have been on strike for more pay since Oct. 18.

The Vancouver workers, originally demanding 20 cents hourly wage boost, now are asking for 18.

Initial meeting of the inter-city co-ordinating committee was described by one union leader as having ended in "complete accord."

IN COURT

Two motorists were sentenced to 15 days in jail and their licenses suspended for one year when they pleaded guilty to drunken driving charges. They were Victor F. Tweney and Jack H. Mooney.

A $15 fine was imposed upon John N. Bracewell, 710 Fort Street, for failing to yield the right of way to a pedestrian.

Argin Singh was fined $15 after he pleaded guilty to a charge of fighting on Fisgard Street Saturday.

For failing to clean his chimney at his 160 Beechwood apartment, Solponias Thorkeisson was sentenced to a fine of $15.

Frank B. Whitney and John French, two naval ratings, were charged with taking a car without the owner's consent. They entered no plea and were remanded until Tuesday for trial. The car belonged to David Miller.

Alfred Didden, charged with careless driving, was remanded until Nov. 21 for trial.

Edna Henry, an Indian, was fined $15 and in default three days on a charge of being drunk.

Half-Slips For Evening Available In Black, White

By PENNY SAVER

The gay, mad whirl of parties, dances and evenings' out have taken a firm foothold, and begorrah, 'tis best we're ready to meet the situations as they arise. Having your evening gowns fresh and ready to wear, is a prime requisite. In my case, I have one gown, and a choice, either I wear it or I don't wear it! Next item on the list is the underslip... and it was a handsome boxful I saw this morning.

Black and white half evening slips in crepe material, trimmed with delicate lace and selling for $3.25 in small, medium and large sizes.

I had to look twice at a price ticket which read $3.98... and who wouldn't? It was pinned to a lush satin bed jacket! Styled with three-quarter length push-up sleeves, the jacket featured wide insets of ecru lace at the yoke and in the fullness of the sleeves. The bargains I do see!

Zippered neck openings, is the news in flannelette pyjamas, for "Her Nibs." In polka dot or floral patterns the pyjamas feature belted waist, new ski cuff on both sleeves and legs, and last but not least, a facing beneath that new zipper. Just so you won't shiver your timbers with that cold metal next to your pinky skin. Price on a pair of pyjamas, $3.98.

The finest grade of Canadian-made all-wool underwear is sitting on most counters awaiting your approval. The unshrinkable snuggles sport a $2.50 ticket; vests, $2.50 and up, with either narrow or wide shoulder straps, and the pantie-type snuggie, $3.25.

Don't know if the skating bug has bitten you, but it has taken a sizeable chunk from myself, here... and the condition gets worse as I happen upon such little items as sweaters, especially suited for this sport. Turtle-necked, the sweaters are, in plain or patterned styles, with a color range from yellow and kelly greens to flamingo reds. Long-sleeved, $5.49; short-sleeved, $3.98. The short-sleeved pullovers add coral red, grey and blue to their color range.

YOUR BABY AND MINE

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDER

Sunbathing is valuable during the colder months, but it may have to be managed in the house if the air outdoors is too chilly for the small fry.

Mrs. C. B. is obviously somewhat dubious about this practice. "Please print in your column the proper way to sunbathe the baby," she writes. "Does a baby get any benefit from being left nude for an hour each day in the house? Is this a good health measure, or does it expose the baby to colds? We are young mothers and want you to say something about this."

To sunbathe the baby in the house, open the window a few inches (sunlight through glass is merely warming) and put the baby in front of it. Close all windows and doors in the room so there will be no drafts. Usually the sun is warm enough to prevent the baby from chilling. Take off hose and put on woolen booties to keep the feet warm. Put the baby's legs in the direct sun. Leave him there for five minutes; the next day 10; the third day 15. You can sun the bare arms, too. This is enough of a sunbath unless the weather is very warm.

Most mothers like to undress a baby at about 5 o'clock and allow him to lie in the nude (with diapers, of course) on a wide bed. This gives the baby an opportunity to kick vigorously, unimpeded by clothing, to learn to roll about, or push from end to end of bed by digging in heels and if the room has a temperature of about 75 degrees the baby will not be harmed and will enjoy this period of freedom just before he is dressed for bed and fed. This is called an air-bath. An hour might be too long and the temperature of the room is important.

Perplexed: I think it is all right for a two-year-old eating with the family to eat some of the same foods. But they should be chosen wisely. Meat, vegetables, potatoes, fruit, gelatin and soups, these can be eaten by the child in the same form as they are prepared for the parents.

You are quite right that highly-spiced meats, rich desserts, navy beans do not belong in such a diet. On the days the parents want to enjoy these foods, they can give the child some of the canned, junior foods that are more suitable to her.

McLellan, aprons; Mrs. J. Alexander, superfluities, and Mrs. Blair Reid, afternoon tea.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Woman With Devoted Husband
Five Intelligent Children,
Gives Heart To Divorced Man

Dear Mary Haworth: I am 35, married and the mother of five beautiful, healthy, intelligent children. My husband is a good hard working man and he claims to love me, the children and our home above all else. But I have fallen in love with Dan, a very wonderful man my own age, and he loves me; and my husband argues with me constantly for going out with Dan. He says I am trying to break up our home. But I cannot live with my husband or stay with him any longer; the strain is too great when I don't love him.

These constant arguments (they get very nasty) are bad for the children, and I think it would be better for them to have one parent, rather than two who are always fighting. My children range in ages from one to 15 years; and I love them but they don't seem to need me any longer, and I know I can manage somehow if I leave Nick.

Dan is divorced and I feel very sorry for Mary Haworth, because he seems to distrust any woman; or did until he met me. He says his wife was unfaithful and not to be trusted. He is willing to give up his job, also his mother, stepfather and sister and his nice home with them, in order to go away with me. We would go some place far away and start life anew; and I plan to take my baby with me. The children love their father very much and I am sure all but the baby will be better off with him.

I have warned Nick I will leave if he doesn't stop fussing just because I want to go out with Dan and have a good time occasionally. I'm not getting any younger and I want some real happiness before I die; and I can't stand this fighting any longer. In Dan's company I shall be able to forget the children; and he says once we get away together I'll know what Heaven is. Now don't you think it's better I go with him? Please state your honest opinion.

V. J.

SHE IS HYPNOTIZED BY A NE'ER-DO-WELL

Dear V. J.: Your line of argument—one can't call it reasoning—is perfectly ridiculous. As a booster campaign in favor of doing as you please, it belongs in the category known as "per-fuming the skunk." You are such a bonehead. One hardly knows where to begin to disentangle the threads of your twisted thinking, in the hope of helping you see your dishonesty. It appears that Dan has you hypnotized. The sum total of your references to him indicate that he is a scoundrel with women and a ne'er-do-well. And in contrast you describe your husband as a good, hard working devoted man, who loves his wife, home and children above all else. So how can you possibly expect me to agree that it's better to leave a good partner for a no-account?

SHE IS PARADING ANXIETY SYMPTOMS

As for your theory that your weakness for Dan is rebuilding his confidence in women's honor—which presumably was wrecked by his faithless wife—surely that notion is good for a laugh when you think it over. If Dan's wife was a strumpet who couldn't be trusted, are you any different in relation to your husband? In running around with Dan, chasing a good time, thereby disgracing your marriage vows, by defiantly neglecting your husband and children, are you giving a performance any man could respect? Certainly not, and Dan knows that.

However, you're not a strong character or you wouldn't be cavorting like a chicken with his head off. And your hysterical behavior reaches a crazy climax of unreason, when you call Nick a troublemaker, for opposing your daff performance. He is acting more like a kindly father of a problem-child, than a betrayed husband in this instance. One marvels at his patience in dealing with you. You are seriously upset, emotionally; and your fling with Dan is simply one symptom of distraction.

Southern Honeymoon Follows Redgrave-Christian Wedding

On a honeymoon trip in California are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gordon Redgrave, who were married Friday evening at Fairfield United Church.

The bride is the former Creta Cameron Christian, daughter of Mrs. John E. Christian, 1005 Chamberlain Street, and the late Capt. Christian. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Redgrave, 3349 Cook Street.

To repeat her vows before Rev. W. Allan, the fair-haired bride, escorted by her brother, C. D. Christian, wore a gleaming white satin gown, an original model, styled on classic princess lines. The bodice, cut with sweetheart neckline, was fashioned with deep inset of Witchcraft lace trimmed with sequins and tiny seed pearls, and matching cap sleeves. Elbow-length gloves were of embroidered lace and the only jewelry was a single strand of pearls. A white satin Juliet cap trimmed with embroidered lace, held a fingertip veil of illusion net.

She carried a shower bouquet of red Briarcliff roses and white chrysanthemums.

Matron of honor, Mrs. W. L. Luney and bridesmaid for her sister, Miss Phyllis Christian, chose turquoise taffeta gowns styled on princess lines, complemented with brief jackets of deeper turquoise velvet. Juliet caps were green velvet, trimmed with pale turquoise illusion net. They wore matching taffeta mitts and carried mauve chrysanthemums.

Flower girl Donna Christian, niece of the bride, was frocked in a full-length gown of turquoise taffeta, with a band of velvet in her red hair and a bouquet of mauve and white button chrysanthemums centred with pink roses.

Mrs. Willard Ireland, organist, played traditional wedding music.

Jack Fish was best man and ushers, Messrs. Maurice and Kenneth Bury, cousins of the groom.

A toast to the bride was proposed by S. W. Worboys at a reception held at the home of the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Orchard, 1023 Davis Street.

For traveling, a Norwegian squirrel fingertip jacket was worn by the bride over her skipper blue gabardine suit complemented with red velvet hat and Bond Street bag. Her corsage bouquet was of gardenias and white button chrysanthemums.

On their return to the city, the couple will live at 137 Robertson Street.

Bazaar Wednesday

Rev. F. R. Dredge will open the bazaar planned by Esquimalt United Church Women's Auxiliary in the church basement, Wednesday at 2.30.

Convening stalls will be Mrs. A. G. Fulmer and Mrs. I. Thomas, fancy work; Mrs. M. Denniston and Mrs. M. Thomas, home-made baking; Mrs. Irwin and Miss A. Ferguson, candy; Mrs. W. Douglas, white elephant; Mrs. C. A. Whittle and Miss H. Kohalyk, aprons; Mrs. W. Halmastin and Mrs. Perkins, pantry shelf. Mrs. G. Jones is in charge of tea tables.

Return From Mountain Resort Honeymoon

Following a honeymoon trip to Portland, where they stayed at Timberline Lodge, Mr. and Mrs. William Shipley, who were married recently at St. Luke's Church, have returned to the city to make their home on Swan Street. Pictured in the wedding entourage are the bride's sisters,

Misses Jill and Joan Bonnell, and best man, Hartley James. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. L. Bonnell, 3710 Saanich Road, and the groom, the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Shipley, 1719 Coronation Avenue.—(Photo by Belcher's Photography)

Sponsors Parlor Recital At Meeting

Successful junior, intermediate, senior and graduate students of piano, voice, violin and speech arts, were presented in recital at the November meeting of Victoria Chapter, Alumni of the Royal Conservatory of Music of Toronto. The gathering was held at the Cadboro Bay Road home of Dr. and Mrs. W. B. Milburn.

Those taking part on the program were: Piano, Madelyn Colis, Marjorie Sturgeon, Rita Neward, Janice Bacon, Joanne Dawson, Susan McElmoye, A. Smalley, Gael Stott, Isabel Ogle, Sylvia Gough, John Gilliland; singing, Lorna Burns, Joanne Milley, Peggy McNeven; violin, Bernard Rain, John Oulton; speech arts, Peter Richards.

The program was arranged by Mrs. John Gough who, with Miss Dorothy Francis, acted as accompanists for the evening. At conclusion of the recital

ICE BLUE GOWN WORN

Noontime Wedding Unites David Osborn, Isabel Raper

Baskets of gold and bronze chrysanthemums formed a perfect setting for the ice blue wedding gown worn by Isabel Mary Raper when she became the bride of David John Osborn, Sunday afternoon at St. Aidan's Church.

The noontime wedding united in marriage the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Raper, Cedar Hill Road, and son of Mrs. E. M. Osborn, Boston, Mass., and the late Mr. A. G. Osborn.

Entering the church on the arm of her father, the bride wore a gown of ice blue lace over matching taffeta styled with snug fitting bodice that buttoned to her very full skirt. Her slender sleeves ended in lily points. A fingertip veil misted from her Juliet cap and she carried a bouquet of tailman roses.

Shimmering gold satin beneath an overskirt of gold net was worn by Miss Barbara Kitto as the bride's only attendant. She carried a bouquet of bronze chrysanthemums.

The groom chose George B. Parks as his best man and the bride's brother, E. Raper, as usher.

During signing of the register Mrs. T. G. Griffith, at the organ, accompanied Mrs. Barbara Brown who sang "Because."

Following the ceremony, performed by Rev. T. G. Griffith, a small reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. The bride's table was set with candles and a wedding cake. Toast was proposed by L. B. Peatt.

For an up-island motor trip the bride donned a winter pink suit with smart brown topcoat and chic brown accessories. Her corsage bouquet was a single green orchid.

Mr. and Mrs. Osborn will make their home in the city.

Ballerina Styled Gowns Worn By Bride And Attendant At Cockburn-Cowan Rites

The ballet influence was the theme carried out in gowns worn by both bride and her attendant when Miss Patricia Cowan exchanged vows with Dr. William Fordyce Cockburn at a ceremony held in St. George's Church, Cadboro Bay, Saturday evening. Rev. W. Hills officiated.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Cowan, Queenswood Drive, is a graduate in commerce of University of British Columbia where she was a member of Delta Gamma Women's Fraternity. She has been in Ottawa for the past year and a half with the statistical department of the Dominion government. The groom, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. Cockburn, Fenwick, Ayshire, Scotland, received his Ph.D. from University of Glasgow in 1949 and since that time has been in Ottawa on a National Research Laboratories post-doctorate fellowship.

Escorted by her father, the bride wore an exquisite ballet-length gown of delicate white French lace, revealing a frosty pink underdress of sharkskin. Frosty pink shade was repeated in a velvet sash tied at her waist and in her veil caught to her blonde hair with a braided bandeau.

White ballet slippers complemented the gown. She wore a single strand of pearls and carried a bouquet of roses and pom pom chrysanthemums.

In contrast to her auburn hair, Miss Pamela Butcher chose an apple green ballet-length dress of silk pique, in her role as maid of honor. Her hat was of green tulle and she carried a bouquet of yellow and white pom pom chrysanthemums.

Lieut. Harry Wade, R.C.N., was best man and ushers were David Williams, Duncan, formerly of Victoria and Lieut. E. Baker, R.C.N.

Bride's table was set with bowls of chrysanthemums, centred with a three-tiered cake at a reception held at the home of Brig. and Mrs. J. Sutherland Brown, Bowker Place.

Brig. Sutherland Brown proposed the toast to the bride.

For the honeymoon trip up-island, then to California and Princeton, N. J., the bride chose a suede cloche hat and gloves to complement her brown dressmaker suit trimmed with beige linen. Brown snakeskin shoes and purse completed her ensemble.

The newlyweds will live in Ottawa.

Burgess Bedtime Story

An open mind will always be from set opinions wholly free.

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

Down from the Far North over great forests, big lakes, might rivers, lonely farms, small villages, even big cities, Honker the Goose had led his flock on their way to the Sunny South for the winter. To the older members of the flock it was all an old story. They had seen all these things many times, for each year since they were born they had made this long journey down in the autumn and back again in the spring. But to the young Geese, making it for the first time, everything was new and wonderful, some times so wonderful as to be almost breath-taking and hard to believe.

It was just so now for they had reached the seashore. In one direction was water as far as they could see. They had flown over great lakes, but never one like this. They flew and flew with the land on one side and the water on the other, but never came to an end of the latter. It kept on and on and on. Some times it was green, some times it was blue, and some times it was dark dark grey. Some times they flew near shore and some times they crossed great bays and the shore was so far away they could hardly see it.

QUEER WATER

It was far out in one of these bays that Honker led them down on the water to rest with other flocks already there. Then they found out something they didn't understand at all. This was queer water, unlike any they ever had known before. They couldn't drink it. It didn't taste good. No, sir, it didn't taste good at all. One after another they tasted it and if a Goose could make up a wry face I suspect each one of them would have done just that. That water was salt. Of course. They were at sea.

There was a lot of visiting among the resting flocks and a lot of gabbling. But there was no food out there, nothing to eat, for the water was very deep. And the water wasn't good to drink. So the young Geese were glad when Honker gave the signal to take wing and they were once more on their way.

At times they were so far out over the ocean that they couldn't see the shore, and had it not been for their wise old leader they would have felt lost and wouldn't have known which way to go. From this lost feeling on the part of folks out on the ocean out of sight of land, of this uncertainty, of not knowing which was to go or just what to do, a familiar saying has come. When folks, no matter where they may be, are confused and in doubt what to do they are said to be "all at sea." The young Geese were all at sea actually, and also in their feelings.

It was Finback the Whale

From time to time they saw other flocks of their own kind and many Ducks. Some were on the water, but more were flying. All the time, or at least most of the time, Gull folk were to be seen, some times resting on the water but more often sailing, now low over the water, now high above it, with only now and then a few lazy flaps of the wings.

The young Geese marvelled at the ease with which they sailed through the air and envied them. How could any one become tired using their wings so little? Their own wings had to be kept beating steadily to keep them in the air, not to mention drive them ahead. Yes, sir, they envied the Gull folk.

Once they saw the round head of Barker and Seal above the water. Then he dived, and they saw him no more. They wondered who he was, where he had come from, where he was going, how he dared to swim so far from land, and why he did it. They didn't dream that he lived in the water as other animals live on land.

Once a strange thing happened. They were flying low. Just ahead of them a little way the water suddenly opened and there came to the surface what they took to be a giant fish, a giant among giants. It was so unbelievably big that some of them almost fell out of the air in their astonishment, for an instant forgetting to keep their wings moving. From the head of the giant what looked like a jet of water shot into the air. It was not water, but vapor. It was Finback the Whale.

Tweeds and fancy weave wools. Some models are interlined and colors include new shades of beige, blue, navy and green. For little tots up to 6 years we also have some smart double-breasted coats in tartans.

SWEATERS

A very complete range of good-looking and good-wearing sweaters for both boys and girls from 2 to 16 years. Here again you will find that combination of style and quality that make for real value.

GIRLS' FELT HATS

These are in fine fur felt in the smart "Avenue" style that is so popular for girls of 6 to 12 years.

BOYS' "Station Wagon" COATS

These are in the quality you'd expect to find at Wilson's. Wind and showerproof in the regular belted three-quarter length style with handsome fur collars. Sizes 10 to 18 years.

For Little Tots—COAT, HAT and LEGGING SETS

These ever-popular outfits are shown in the famous Kenwood blanket cloth and in imported English wool fabrics. Suitable for boys or girls of ages 3 to 6 years.

CHIROPRACTIC FOR HEALTH TONSILLITIS

Your body is a permanent battleground. Poisons and bacteria are constantly present, ready to attack whenever the resistance is lowered. In the body, certain glands and organs, such as the lymph glands, liver, spleen, kidneys and tonsils, are constantly on the defence. Their job is to tackle the invaders, render them harmless, and eliminate them through the normal channels. Under today's sanitary conditions, the tonsils have the easiest job, as the other defences can usually handle the enemy. However, in an emergency such as an epidemic, all the forces of the body are required to operate at peak efficiency. Chronic tonsillitis does not necessarily mean that the tonsils are entirely at fault. It may be that, over the years, they have become diseased or permanently degenerated to the point where their removal may be advisable. On the other hand, it will usually be found that a constant overload has been thrown on the tonsils because one or more of the other defence glands and organs have not been operating efficiently. Since the nerves control the function of all these glands and organs, the Chiropractor first examines the nervous system to determine whether or not a spinal misalignment is causing pressure on the nerves in question, interfering with the controlling impulses. If so, an adjustment is given to free these nerves, resulting in restoration of normal function to the areas involved. When all the defence mechanisms are operating efficiently, the tonsillitis will disappear.

Hair Both Short And Long In Shell-Shaped Coiffure

The horns of the coiffure dilemma facing many women are, on the one side, an urge to retain the soft, youthful effect of short hair, and on the other, a desire to return to the flexibility of arrangement afforded by longer locks.

Hair stylist Betty Reed of Ford City, Pa., offers one solution to this problem with her "shell-do." Hair is kept short in front and combed into a gently rounded, face-flattering bang.

Back hair, which is allowed to grow to a longer length, is brushed backward from the temples and upward from the neckline. It is then lifted from the nape with a rubber band which secures not-quite grown out strands. The resultant fall of hair resembles a shell, with the ends curled upward in a half-wave.

For daytime wear, a tailored barrette may be used to cover the rubber band or a ribbon may be tied over it for a more dressy effect. The correct shaping and thinning of the hair is most important, since too much bulkiness at the back of the head results in bad contour lines. The slight wave in bang and

"Do People Really Call Me Crabby?"

Do you sometimes feel that people are beginning to think you are high-strung — always tense and nervous — so that you fly off the handle easily?

Your Nerves Can Play Strange Tricks on You!

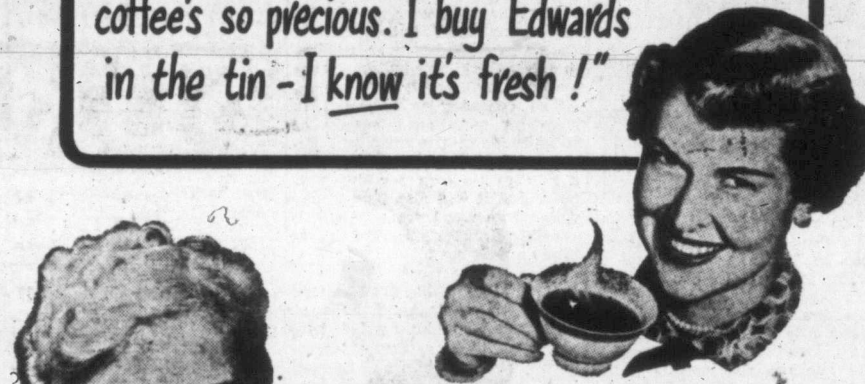

Many women find it hard to realize their nerves are "bad". Yet it's not unusual for a high-strung woman's delicate nervous system to get off balance—especially during the functional changes the "face" in girlhood, young motherhood and middle life. That's when a good tonic, like Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, can do you so much good by helping to restore your nervous energy. It will help you feel better, look better, rest better at night.

During the last fifty years, thousands of Canadian women of all ages have gone safely and happily through the most trying periods of life—by taking this time-tested tonic containing Vitamin B₁, iron and other needed minerals. Give Dr. Chase's Nerve Food a chance to help you, too, when you feel edgy, upset or a bundle of nerves. Get the large "economy size" today. The name "Dr. Chase" is your assurance.

HOLLYWOOD REVIEW

NBC President Says Plans Pushed For More TV Films

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Hollywood, which so far has only its foot in the television door, this week heard that it might get inside some day.

NBC President Joseph H. McConnell told a press conference that "we expect to have a substantial number of television shows emanating from Hollywood; we also expect a substantial number of films in the television programming."

He indicated that plans are progressing for more TV films in Hollywood but direct telecasting to the big eastern audience will have to await conclusion of country-wide transmission facilities, still a year or more away.

He added that he is "surprised that motion picture people haven't interested themselves more in television." He predicted they will in the future.

SATURDAY STEW

I note that Gloria Swanson is reported signed to make a picture in Britain. Also that she started a regular radio show from New York. So, despite her triumphant comeback and oscar contention, Hollywood has offered her nothing to cash in on her fame.

Radio had one of its minor tizzies this week. Laurence Olivier and Vivien Leigh appeared together on Radio Theatre. As with other stars, they were asked to endorse the sponsor's product at the end of the show. The titled couple declined. No amount of persuasion could change their minds. Olivia de Havilland is the only other star who has told that program "no soap."

THERE IS JUST ONE ANSWER

What would you think if your neighborhood group should advertise, "EVERYTHING MUST GO! PRICES BLASHEED! MAKE AN OFFER! or similar sensational bait? Would it indicate that his bait was as good or that his merchandise was of dependable quality?

When you buy an automobile you spend a lot of money. You should exercise a lot of judgment.

We are careful what we select, as stock. It eliminates "ballyhoo" in finding customers.

"Tea for Two"

"Do you remember," said this gal to me, "the time you kissed me under the tree? 'Twas a drooping palm at the Empress Hotel, I had rested my head on your lapel."

"Why sure I do, how could I forget, it was back in the days of the crystal set! Why I even remember what I had on, a flowery dress of flowery chiffon. Splashes of lilacs, and a black velvet sash, so it wasn't MY fault, if I tried to mash. "Don't," she cried, as if to scold, "you're making me feel, so ancient-old. And they WEREN'T lilacs, but daisies of white, so your taking off blind, in your fancy's flight. "Well, lilacs or daisies or pastels of brown, you still were the prettiest girl in the town. Ah, how I remember that merry chase, but with U I could never, get to first base. "Oh... don't be ridiculous, you're asinine, and it's time you quit slinging' a line. But it sure was fun, of an afternoon, those Tea Dansants, in the Crystal Ballroom. "Yes," I replied, "yet it seems silly now, 'cause the graciousness of life, has departed somehow. These kids of today, would scoff askance, at the idea of an afternoon dance. I guess U can't blame 'em, 'cause times have changed, and the whole of Victoria has been re-arranged. Some 40,000 people in those dear dead days, when Couples were known as Cabriolets. And a fellow had time to court a lady, the Colonel's daughter or Judy O'Grady. So decked in a blazer & white flannel pants, he took her to town, to the Tea Dance. "Ah, yes, she sighed, "those days have gone, and so has that flowery flowered chiffon. And those big floppy hats, mine was black, and we wore on our heads or tied on our back. Well... I must be off, have shopping to do, so glad I came in, & talked with you. You've SUCH nice things in your store, I'll come in again and see every floor. "Why sure," I said, "I stay awhile, 'cause U know 'We Give Furniture Away With a Smile.' "Well, there's nothing we want, pretty well-set, 'tho friend hubby is thinking of a Video set." Then she was gone, I flopped in a chair, & closed my eyes & saw her there. We were back in the Empress, she was waiting with me, & we'd paused for a moment under that tree. Then to our table... that rendezvous, when we were young, & had TEA FOR TWO.

Nine Injured in Week-End Crashes

Auto Wreckers' Truck Sideswiped By Hit-Run Car Near Six-Mile Post

Nine persons received injuries, one serious, in holiday week-end accidents in Victoria and district, police reported today.

Ann Bowman, 12-year-old daughter of Agricultural Minister Harry R. Bowman, 2486 McNeill Street, most seriously hurt, was reported to be in an improved condition today in Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Others who received minor hurts were:

Rhoda Sterling, Stanley Apartments, Linden Avenue, cuts.

Stephen Powell, four, of 638 Monterey Avenue, bruises and lacerations.

Edward Medwedrick, eight, of 3 Alma Place, bruises.

Mrs. Margaret Engel, Vancouver, and Richard Jordan, 659 Head Street, head abrasions.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Sparks, 111 Kootenay Street, Vancouver, and Roy Davis, 2814 Nanaimo Street, Victoria, cuts and bruises.

A fractured clavical and head injuries were suffered by Miss Bowman. Police said she was crossing Pandora at Blanshard when struck by a car driven by Donald McDonald, 1544 Bank Street.

RAN INTO TREE

Miss Sterling's small English car was in collision with a tree on Beach Drive at Mount Joy. Car was considerably damaged, Oak Bay police said.

Young Powell received his hurts when he ran into the side of a car driven by J. A. Church, 41 Gorge Road, Oak Bay police said.

Mrs. Engel, Mr. and Mrs. Sparks and Jordan and Davis were in two cars in a collision at Colville and Lampson. Both vehicles were badly damaged.

R.C.M.P. said wet road conditions were blamed in a collision a half-mile south of Tunnel Hill between cars driven by Arthur R. Southall and W. Gibbons.

A Victoria Auto Wreckers' vehicle was side-swiped by a hit-run car near Wilfrid Road, just past the 6-Mile post, R.C.M.P. said.

Damage was done to cars driven by David Jones, 75 Cook Street, and Arnold Johnson, Waldorf Auto Camp, Colwood, police reported.

TRAFFIC TIE-UP

About $300 damage was done to a car driven by George Leggett, 58 Vincent Street. It was in a head-on collision with a car driven by Leonard Kula, 51 Gorge Road West to the up traffic at Gorge Road near Qu'Appelle.

Police said minor damage was done to cars driven by Glen H. Erickson, 333 Ker Avenue, and Roy A. Sparks, 848 Bastion Street, when they collided.

Damage was caused in a collision between cars driven by Norman George, Milnes Landing, and Robert G. MacDonald, 2169 Fair Street.

Police list a fair amount of damage done in the collision between vehicles in charge of Gordon Bell, 1295 St. Charles Street, and R. J. Poirier, 2948 Scott Street.

When one of the cars in charge of E. F. Clark, 3503 Richmond Road, and George Richardson, 228 Douglas Street, stopped suddenly to avoid hitting a dog, the vehicles collided.

Police said damage was done in a collision between cars in charge of G. R. Wilkinson, 141 Beechwood, and Clarence R. D. Ferris, 628 Battery Street.

CARS BY PLANE

Vancouver-Victoria Service Suggested

Victorians who fly to the mainland will be taking their cars along with them, if the suggestion of the managing director of England's Bristol Aeroplane Co. Ltd. is followed through.

W. R. Verdon Smith, visiting B.C. from his home in Bristol, Eng., thinks a service similar to those now operating between England and France and between Australia and Tasmania could prove successful here.

The dapper, 38-year-old lawyer, who is in this area to visit British Aeroplane Engines Ltd., a subsidiary of Bristol in Vancouver, said the "car lift" in England carried 6,000 automobiles last year. Rate is $120 for the car including anything up to five passengers.

NO RATES YET

He hasn't got down to figuring out rates for a Vancouver-Victoria service.

Mr. Smith said talks have been going on with Trans-Canada Air Lines and Queen Charlotte Airlines on the aerial car ferry idea.

His company built the Brazabon, world's largest aircraft, and now is constructing the Brazabon Mark II with propeller-turbines.

The original Brazabon—which will carry 90 to 100 passengers—has proved successful. It was designed for nonstop London-New York flights, Mr. Smith said.

Deadline Near For Mail For Services

There is less than two weeks left to mail Christmas parcels to Canadian servicemen serving in the Far East.

Postmaster-General G. E. Rinfret has issued a reminder that deadline for parcels is Nov. 26. They must be at the post offices concerned by that date—at Vancouver and the Fleet Mail Office at Esquimalt.

Deadline for letters to reach the men by Christmas is Dec. 12. This applies to letters prepaid at the domestic airmail rate.

Parcels should be securely wrapped in containers.

War Buddies Gather

Three wars were fought all over again at the Canadian Scottish Regiment's sergeants' mess on Remembrance Day, as old-timers discussed the Boer War, World War I, and World War II. One of those who served in all three, and who attends all Armistice Day parades, was Sgt. Eric Chalmers, who attended with his son, Sgt. Ken Chalmers.

Fly TCA

OVERSEAS overnight and you're in Europe in the morning. You fly relaxed in comfort aboard one of Canada's mighty 4-engined "North Stars", the big, fast and powerful aircraft of proved reliability, specially designed and equipped for long range, high altitude flying. You can have equal confidence, take equal pride in its Canadian crew—unsurpassed in world aviation for experience and ability. Every TCA Trans-Atlantic pilot, for example, has flown over a million miles with the Skyliners.

TCA's Trans-Atlantic service carries you across the ocean at the smoothest level on Canada's own smooth "High" way to Europe. Destination Paris? Or Rome? Or some other historic Old World city? Whatever it may be TCA and associated air lines provide your quick, comfortable way to travel.

Daily TCA flights to London, Glasgow, Shannon—with quick, direct connections to the key centres of Europe, North Africa and the Near East. Stopovers en route at no extra fare.

YOUR TRAVEL AGENT will help you plan—can make all arrangements for your trip, including hotel accommodation, tours, etc. See him or your nearest TCA Office for full information, reservations. Write for TCA's new 12-page "Europe" folder, to Dept. O, Trans-Canada Air Lines, Montreal.
